ALLIES CAPTURE ELEVEN VILLAGES

FOUR-MILE ADVANCE BY FRENCH

AMERICANS IN GREAT BATTLE

London, Aug. 10.–The War Office announced today that American troops had entered the great drive in Picardy. The announcement said that Americans and British had achieved success between the Somme and Ancre Rivers. The allied advance continues all along the front. The British and French have captured eleven more villages. Montdidier is among the places taken. The French today attacked on a front of sixteen miles in the Montdidier region and advanced four miles in six hours.

London, Aug. 10 (11:32 A. M.).---The German retreat continues over the whole Picardy front. Ham is being bombarded with a heavy German cannon, which was taken from the enemy. It is a 380-millimetre piece. So far 250 guns have been captured from the Germans. Ham is 18 1-4 miles from the present fighting line.

London, Aug. 10 (11:21 A. M.).---"The allies are wreaking havoc behind the enemy lines, where the utmost confusion reigns," says a Havas dispatch from the Picardy battlefront. "The German supply columns are pressing in disorderly fashion towards the Somme bridges, which the British are heavily bombarding."

London, Aug. 10.---More than 24,000 German prisoners have been captured since the Anglo-French counter-offensive was opened in Picardy on Thursday morning, the War Office announced today.

London, Aug. 10- (12:55 p. m.) --- Allied troops have entered Montdidier on the Southern end of the Picardy front, it was learned by the International News Service this afternoon. The French attacked at 4 o'clock this morning on a sixteen-mile front between Montdidier and the Oise River, advancing four miles in the first six hours.

One hundred more Germans guns were captured. All of Montdidier has not been cleared of Germans and fighting was still in progress in the city, according to information received early this afternoon. After the allies had surrounded the city, the troops that entered encountered some German units and began wiping them out. At 10:30 this morning the French line was said to extend from Faverolles past Piennes, Rollot, Cuvilly, Ressons, Surmatz and Vignemont. Of the 24,000 prisoners captured, 7,000 were taken by the French. The British line at 9 o'clock this morning was reported to extend through the sectors of Dernancourt, Tailles wood, Chipilly, Proyart, Lihons, Meharicourt, Roueroy, Bouchoir, Boussicourt and Gratibus.

The fall of Montdidier has forced the Germans back out of gun range of the Paris-Amiens railway.

Chaulnes Junction is being shelled by the allies, and Canadian cavalry forces are hampering the removal of German stores. Chaulnes is now useless to the Germans. The develop-

ATTEMPT TO BURN HOME OF SALEM MAYOR

Life of Mother, Who Is Critically Ill, Endangered Incendiary

Salem, Aug. 10.—An attempt to burn the home of Mayor Dennis J. Sullivan, in which his mother lies critically ill, was made early today. The Mayor, who had not retired, telephoned the central fire station but extinguished the blaze before the arrival of the firemen.

A parlor window was lifted by the incendiary who set fire to a pair of lace curtains. The woodwork of the room caught fire.

541 NAMES IN SIX NEW LISTS FROM THE FRONT

Over 100 More Killed in Action; Total U. S. Losses at Marne Now Over 4,000

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Five Army and one Marine Corps casualty lists were issued today. The army lists contained 516 names, divided as follows:

Sixty-four killed in action, 102 wounded severely, 102 wounded, degree undetermined, 28 died from wounds, 3 from disease, 2 from aeroplane accident, 4 from accident and other causes and 211 missing in action.

The Marine list contained 25 names, divided as follows:

Eleven killed in action, 5 died from

"ENEMY GOING AT ALL POINTS," SAYS MARCH

Washington, Aug. 10.—The allies have got the enemy going at every point. Now is the time to keep him running.

This is no time to talk about the war being over. Rather it is the time to hit him hard and keep on hitting him. Gen. March, chief of staff, in his weekly conference with the newspaper correspondents, made this plain today in explaining why all possible man-power should be employed against the Germans.

ments may force the Germans to retreat all the way behind the Somme. The total number of guns captured from the Germans is now put at 300.

The maximum infantry advance, over 20 miles of the front, is 12 miles. (Cavalry forces are far in front of the infantry, and the statement is warranted that the allies' deepest advance is 15 miles, including the distance covered by the horsemen ahead of the foot soldiers.)

British and Americans Capture Morlancourt

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 10.—Morlancourt and the high ground Southeast of the town were captured by British and Americans during the night, the War Office report also stated.

The villages of Le Tronquoy, Le Fretoy and Assainvillers, all in the Montdidier sector, have been captured by the French.

Australian and Canadian troops on the centre drove forward, capturing five more villages. They are Bouchoir, Meharicourt, Lihons, Raincourt and Proyart.

The text of the official statement follows:

"The allied advance continues along the whole front from Montdidier to the Apere.

"The number of prisoners in our hands now exceeds 24,000.

"The French have captured Le Tronquoy, Le Fretoy, and Assainvillers and now threaten Montdidier.

"Canadian and Australian troops have taken Bouchoir, Meharicourt, Lihons, Raincourt and Proyart.

"American and English troops achieved a success between the Somme and Ancre.

"Morlancourt and high ground to the southeast were captured during the night by Anglo-American troops."

French Gain North and South of Montdidier

Paris, Aug. 10.—Today's French official communique says that gains were made by the French both north and south of Montdidier. North of Montdidier the French captured Davenscourt. To the south of Montdidier the French conquered Rubescourt and Assainvillers, reaching Faverolles, over two miles east of Montdidier. The text of the communique follows:

"French troops operating on the right of the British forces (in Picardy) continued their success during Friday evening and last night. The French made progress east of Arvillers and captured Davenscourt. (Davenscourt is about three miles northeast of Montdidier.) Attacking south of Montdidier, between Ayencourt and Le Fretoy, they (the French) have conquered Rubescourt and Assainvillers and have reached Faverolles."

BULLETINS!

Paris, Aug. 10 (10:30 A. M.)—More than 21,000 Germans have been captured in the Anglo-French offensive, dispatches to French newspapers stated today. The British and French attack is progressing in the most satisfactory way.

Paris, Aug. 10 (Bulletin).—The German rail base at Roye, under fire of the French artillery, is burning in places and the line of retreat by the German forces in the Montdidier sector to the northeast is seriously menaced. The Germans in this region can now only retire on a line due east and almost parallel to the allies' battle line to maintain communications with the harassed forces of the German Crown Prince to the north of Soissons.

London, Aug. 10 (11:10 A. M.)—The British have captured Chapilly from the Germans on the Picardy front, and cavalry and tanks have advanced two miles beyond Chaulnes, the important German base, it was reported unofficially from the front today. The deepest progress made by the allies is now fifteen miles.

GERMAN ADMITS YANKEES CAN'T BE STOPPED

Letter Found in Woods, Describing Fighting, Says Americans Were Underestimated

Washington, Aug. 10.—General Pershing has cabled to the War Department a vivid description of the American attack against the Germans, written by a German lieutenant in his father, which was found in the woods where the officer was killed.

"Never have I seen such a thing," wrote the officer. "Nobody could have withstood them.

The writer describes his experiences in the Chateau Thierry section during the opening days of the American offensive, especially in the Bois de la Tournal. This wood was the scene of sharp fighting from July 24 to 26. The letter concludes: "I think we have underestimated Foch and his reserves, and especially the Americans. I have a presentiment that I shall lose my skin. I wish it were tomorrow."

HAND TO HAND FIGHTING.

Here is the letter:

"At 2 o'clock in the afternoon artillery fire started which lasted about an hour and a half. We were expecting then that something was going to happen in front of us. Suddenly the fire ceased and immediately runners came toward us. The Americans were attacking on the entire line.

"Never have I seen such a thing! Nobody could have withstood them. The enemy was six to eight times as strong as we were. We were disseminated over the advance zone in checker formation by groups of eight men every 200 or 300 meters, and the Americans were arriving by regiments.

"In this case the decision imposed by hand-to-hand fighting played a most important role. Many of the enemy fell but others took their places. It was like killing a few bees from a swarm.

"What could we do ourselves, very inferior in number, especially when the enemy fire was so terrible? It seemed best to run when we could not hold, take another position, resume the fight and gradually retire.

"Those who could not run have fallen into the hands of the enemy. Many of them had that fate. There also were large numbers of killed and wounded. Those who are not too severely wounded are the lucky. The country receives them in her arms and they are out of an unlucky situation.

ABANDON THEIR POSITION.

"I did not participate in that fight which lasted until late into the night. At nightfall I went to see the commanders of the company to give them orders for the future. The French and the Americans having attacked and advanced more to the north, we have been obliged to abandon the position, and we went several kilometers toward the north.

"Yesterday morning they put us at rest in a wood, but the 'wicked enemy' was there in front of us. Either troops who are just as tired as we are had stopped them for a while. Last night we were engaged again, but our battalion was in reserve at about 600 meters from the first line for the reason that we had seriously melted in numbers. But any minute we expect to be engaged to repulse a new attack, as the French, with renewed courage, are attacking constantly.

UNDERRATED THE AMERICANS.

"The battle continually sways back and forth. The village changes frequently. With the exception of a few points of minor importance, we hold the positions occupied yesterday.

"The blockheads attacked with several tanks today. According to the reports the tanks have been destroyed. The artillery also is engaged.

"There is terrible noise here. Our own and enemy shells are passing constantly overhead and bursting sometimes close to us. Before us the machine guns are ecrackling; which is proof that the enemy are engaged. Let's hope they will not pass.

"Summing it all up, I think we have underestimated Foch and his reserves, and especially the Americans. I have a presentiment I shall lose my skin. I wish it were tomorrow."

MARINES ARE IDOLS OF FRANCE, SAYS ROOSEVELT

Washington, Aug. 10.—Bois Belleau wood, from which the United States marines cleared every Boche, has been renamed "Bois Belleau de la Brigade la Marines," by the French in honor of the "Teufel-Hunds" according to a cable from Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt to Secretary Daniels today. Roosevelt's message to the unit on the front and cabled that "Both English and French are enthusiastic over the work of the marines. The position at Belleau wood where they forced the Germans back was a very difficult one. The marines are idols of France, he added.

REVERE MAYOR UPHELD IN DOWD'S DISMISSAL

Mayor Holt's discharge of Patrolman Thomas W. Dowd of Revere has been upheld by Judge Bosson in Chelsea court. Dowd was discharged by the Mayor after a hearing on charges of conduct unbecoming to an officer and on duty, defiance of authority and violation of general rules of discipline. This was on May 28.

The next day a new law went into effect making it compulsory to file an appeal within three days. Under the old law an appeal might be filed any time. Dowd filed an appeal but, which Judge Bosson found was too late.

WAR SUMMARY

By FRANK CHARLTON,
International News Service Cable Editor.

American troops are now adding their blows to the smashing thrusts of the British and French on the Picardy front. News that Americans are fighting with the British in the new counter-offensive came out through official channels today for the first time. The Americans are engaged on the northern part of the fighting zone between the Somme and Ancre Rivers. This district is immediately south of Albert.

The German retreat continues over the whole 30-mile front, from the Ancre to the zone just south of Montdidier. The French extended their offensive operations today to the district between Montdidier and the Oise River, swiftly advancing to the south and southeast of Montdidier.

Unofficial advices from the front said that allied troops had already entered Montdidier.

That the city had been "pocketed" was shown by the French War Office at noon when it announced that advanced elements had reached Faverolles, three miles east of Montdidier. Montdidier was the chief key position supporting the Germans' left flank.

Vast numbers of German prisoners are being taken. The British War Office today put the number at more than 24,000 and the captives are still streaming in.

The capture of many more villages was reported by the British and French War Offices today and the allied armies are still going forward in their headlong advance, overcoming all resistance.

On the northern end of the front the German pivot position at Albert is threatened with capture.

The fighting was expected to take on fresh violence today with the Germans counter-attacking, but at no point have the retiring invaders been able to make a successful stand.

The allied infantry, supported by fleets of tanks and swarms of airplanes and artillery, is sweeping forward in the wake of the swiftly moving cavalry. It is unofficially estimated that over 300 cannon have been captured from the Germans, some of which have been turned against the enemy. The German base at Ham is under fire from a 15-inch gun which the allied forces captured.

The third day of the new drive found the Germans rolled back to a maximum depth of 15 miles. At the point of the allies' deepest advance the Germans are now about 30 miles from Amiens. Advanced elements of allied troops are already eastward of Chaulnes.

One of the best and quickest rushes was made by the French this morning when they were unofficially reported to have gained four miles in six hours southeast of Montdidier.

The extension of the operations southward indicates that the allies' offensive may soon extend all the way from the region south of Arras to the Aisne-Vesle front.

As was the case on the Marne, the Americans entry into the "big push" was signalized by victory. Americans on the northern end of the Picardy front helped the British to capture Morlancourt and adjacent high ground last night.

Montdidier's Loss Severe Blow to Germans

Montdidier, which the allies have captured, was one of the chief German support positions on the Picardy front. It is a place of high strategic importance owing to the fact that eight highways and four railway lines converge there. One of the railroads runs southeastwards from Amiens, another southwestwards from Chaulnes and Roye, while the others enter the town from the southwest and southeast. Montdidier is on the Avre River and was taken by the Germans in their first big offensive of the year, starting on March 21.

Give Benefit of Doubt to Driver of Ambulance

"The driver of a hospital auto ambulance in involved in an accident is entitled to the benefit of all doubts as to his responsibility for the accident."

This policy was today established by the Massachusetts Highway Commission.

Manuel Gravere, driver of an ambulance of the Fall River City Hospital, lost control of his car while responding to an emergency call. The machine jumped the sidewalk, striking a small girl, with fatal results.

The commission ruled that ordinarily the poor condition of a street would not be an excuse, but in this case the driver was making speed to save life. Gravere will be allowed to retain his license.

It was the first case of the kind to come before the commission for decision.

SERGEANT JONES MADE LIEUTENANT IN FRANCE

Worcester, Aug. 10.—Sergeant Daniel A. Jones of Company C, 104th Infantry, has been commissioned a lieutenant in France, according to a letter received by Robert T. Flynn of No. 11 Concord street from his brother, Sergeant Edward H. Flynn of the Light Infantry, of which unit Sergeant Jones was also a member.

AMERICANS GO AHEAD ON VESLE; CAPTURE 100

Suburbs of Fismes Taken After Heavy Cannonade by French and U. S. Guns

By HENRY G. WALES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army on the Aisne-Vesle Front, Aug. 9 (8 p. m.).—The Americans extended their line north of the Vesle River, the northern suburbs of Fismes being captured along with 100 German prisoners.

(The capture of Fismette, a northern suburb of Fismes, on the upper bank of the Vesle, was announced by the French War Office on Friday night.)

Following the German artillery opened on against the French positions west of Rheims, following up the bombardment with attacks, all of which were repulsed.

The German "heavies" were active against various cross roads and villages in the rear of the allied lines between Brasines and Rheims, the chief cannonades being directed against the French in the Brasines.

A strong cannonade by American and French batteries preceded the successful attack which resulted in the capture of Fismes' northern suburb.

The Americans encountered little resistance, although some Germans were killed in hand-to-hand fighting and a number of wounded Germans were taken prisoners.

Late Thursday night twenty-three Germans under a lieutenant, tried to ascertain what Americans were doing in the Blanches region. The raiding party was permitted to approach the American lines, then was attacked. Twenty of the Germans were killed, some with the bayonet, and the three survivors, including the lieutenant, were captured.

Two German airplanes were shot down by the Americans on Thursday.

While the weather was cloudy today, most of the clouds were high in the sky, and the aviators on both sides were busier than they had been for several days.

MELROSE WAR CHEST HAS A BIG BALANCE

Figures given out today by the Melrose War Chest Fund show total disbursements for the first four months of the fund of $13,184 for war relief work, and collections of $26,238. Expenses incident to the establishment of the fund and the campaign for the same amount to $1,861, while the operating expenses, which includes clerk hire, postage, stationery, etc., averages $140 per month. Of the $13,184 disbursed, $11,533 has been to the local and national Red Cross. The fund has a balance on hand of over $20,000 for the first third of a year.

GREEK FESTIVAL AT GLOUCESTER POSTPONED

East Gloucester, Aug. 10.—The Greek festival to be given today under the auspices of the Community Theatre Association for war relief purposes has been postponed until Monday. The Greek market will open at 2 Monday afternoon, while the festival proper, in which 200 people take part, will be held in the natural amphitheatre. Society people of the North Shore and the artists' colony have co-operated to make it a success.

HINT INFLUENCE DELAYS FISH REPORT

Attorney-General Attwill, However, Determined to Bring Profiteers to Full Justice

The Grand Jury for Suffolk County, after making its report for the month of July, returned to Judge Hitchcock in the Criminal Court, has been excused until Thursday, when action [illegible] by Attorney-General Attwill relating to the alleged control of the fish industry by a combination in restraint of trade, and contrary to the laws of Massachusetts.

Since hearings were suspended on August 1, at which time all the material facts had been brought out, powerful influences have been brought to bear on Attorney-General Attwill to prevent the Massachusetts courts from taking jurisdiction of the case, on the ground that it will seriously complicate an investigation begun in the United States Court designed for the benefit of the public in reducing the present high prices of fish.

It is rumored that if Attorney-General Attwill had directed his efforts solely toward securing an indictment against the corporation said to be responsible for existing conditions, the present opposition might not have developed. But Mr. Attwill's objective has been individuals who, it is claimed, profiteered at the expense of the public, and not a mere scrap of paper which has furnished the machinery for conducting a business not only of extraordinary volume, but also yielding enormous profits.

Nothing short of a demand from some high official at Washington will cause Mr. Attwill to desist from his purpose of bringing certain persons, some of whom are prominent in the financial affairs of Boston, to trial in the Superior Court, and in preparing an indictment very possible precaution has been guarded against, to prevent legal pitfalls.

5 COUPLES SEEK DIVORCE AT DEDHAM

3 From Quincy and 1 Each From Brookline and Franklin

The bonds of matrimony have proven unendurable to five Norfolk county residents, who have filed suits for divorce with the clerk of the superior court at Dedham. Three are from Quincy and one each from Brookline and Franklin. The cases filed today are:

Jennie P. Dunham of Brookline, who charges Melbourne K. Dunham of New ork City with desertion on March 15, 1915, at Brookline, and requests the court to grant her the custody of her two children, James W., aged thirteen, and William J., three years old. They were married in Salem on November 27, 1902.

Lula B. Barkey of Franklin, who charges William B. Barker of Waltham with desertion on February 8, 1915. She also charges her husband with intemperance and asks for the custody of her five-year-old daughter, Barbara. They were married Aug. 12, 1912, in Franklin.

William C. King of Quincy, who alleges desertion and infidelity on the part of Blanche W. King of Providence. He was deserted on November 19, 1911. He says. Their marriage took place in Fall River, on February 4, 1905.

Jessie M. Pitalos of Quincy, who sues Constine G. Pitalos of Quincy for divorce on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment. She asks the custody of a minor son, George C., and alimony. They were married on December 12, 1916.

Emmy Alma Brock of Quincy, who charges Joseph A. Brock of Quincy with cruel and abusive treatment and neglect to provide for their four children. They were married June 27, 1916, in Boston.

STEALING FREIGHT RIDE CLASSED AS LARCENY

Everett, Wash., Aug. 10.—Stealing a ride on a freight train now is larceny from the Government, according to a charge placed against Anil Helm, who is held here for a hearing before a Federal Grand Jury. It is believed this is the first time that a theft charge has been made for stealing a ride on a freight train.

STATE BANISHES ENEMY FIRE INSURANCE

13 Companies Are Barred From Doing Business in Massachusetts

That thirteen enemy alien fire insurance companies have been prohibited from doing business in Massachusetts since the war began was announced by Insurance Commissioner Hardison in his annual report.

Commissioner Hardison also announced that the word "German," once a business asset, "but now looked upon with distrust and suspicion," has been wiped out from the title of every insurance company now doing business in the State.

Ten of the prohibited companies were German, two Bulgarian and one Austrian. Two of the German companies reinsured their business in other companies and eight of them were authorized to resume business after changing their corporate titles and becoming thoroughly Americanized.

The supervision of the enemy alien companies was undertaken by the Federal government under the Trading with the Enemy Act. Commenting on the situation, Commissioner Hardison said:

"But although many alien enemy insurance companies have been expelled from the field, it is a matter for congratulation among ourselves that that task is one so well provided for the solvency of the United States branches of these institutions that each of them, so far as now appears, will be able to settle all of its liabilities in their full."

U. OF M. GRADUATE IS KILLED IN ACTION

Portland, Me., Aug. 10.—Lieutenant Gerald E. Stolz of Oakland, reported as killed in action, was twenty-four, and was serving with Company K, 103th Infantry of the Rainbow Division. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Stolz. Lieutenant Stolz was a University of Maine, 1918, man and was appointed a second lieutenant at Plattsburg last year. He was gas officer of his battalion.

GERMANS LOSE 65 PLANES AND THE BRITISH 50 IN THRILLING CONFLICTS

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 10.—One hundred and fifteen British and German airplanes were downed in one day's fighting in the air and five observation balloons were shot down in flames, according to an official communique on aviation issued here today.

Forty-eight German machines were destroyed and 17 others were driven down out of control.

Fifty British machines were reported missing.

British airmen rendered splendid co-operation with the infantry at the opening of the big counter offensive on the Picardy front on Thursday.

Planes were used for supplying the advanced troops with ammunition during the fighting. The airmen assisted the tanks also.

The text of the official statement reads:

"On August 8 our airplane squadrons co-operated with arms on the battle front throughout the day.

CO-OPERATED WITH TANKS.

"The line reached by our attacking infantry was reported by our contact airplanes. The positions of the hostile artillery in action and columns of German infantry and transports on the march were signaled to our guns by our artillery machines.

"Other machines supplied our advanced troops with ammunition from the air.

"Co-operation with the tanks was carried on systematically.

"Our machines escorted the tank crews with information, attacked German strong points and other enemy opposition with bombs and machine gun fire.

"Smoke bombs were dropped along the line of their advance which helped to conceal the approach of the tanks from the enemy.

"Our contact machines, working with the cavalry, rendered valuable service.

"Flying low in front of our advancing line, our fighting squadrons shot at and bombed the enemy during the retreat, causing havoc among the masses of hostile troops and transports on the roads congested with traffic.

"Our bombing squadrons, flying a few hundred feet above the ground, attacked trains, railway junctions and bridges.

SHOT DOWN IN FLAMES.

"Forty-eight hostile machines are recorded as destroyed by our airplanes and seventeen others were driven down out of control. Five hostile balloons were shot down in flames. Fifty of our machines are missing. Most of these casualties were due to fire from the ground.

"One of our night flying machines failed to return.

"On Aug. 9 our airmen continued their work of co-operation with British infantry, artillery, cavalry and tanks on the battle front.

"German troops and transports again were attacked with bombs and machine gunfire from a low altitude whenever a suitable target offered itself.

"The bridges over the Somme River were heavily bombed both by day and by night.

"Elsewhere along the British front activity in the air has been slight, but the ordinary work of the photographic, reconnaissance and observation squadrons has been carried on."

SUGAR ONLY ON REQUEST, THEN 1 SPOONFUL

New Order for Restaurants, Hotels and Public Eating Places

Sugar only on request and then only one teaspoonful for each meal is the restriction imposed upon restaurants, hotels and public eating places in the latest regulations by the Massachusetts Food Administration.

The supply of sugar is such, according to State Food Administrator Henry B. Endicott, as to insure only two pounds of sugar for ninety meals for each person of Massachusetts. This, according to the same authority, includes the sugar used in cooking these meals.

Mr. Average Citizen must do with less than his allotment if invalids and children are to have more than two pounds per month, the food administration declares.

The regulations are the result of demands made upon the food administration out of all proportion to the supply.

Violation of the new regulations will be punished to the full extent of the Federal food law, proprietors of eating places are warned.

New England children eat too much sugar in the opinion of Dr. Helen I. Doherty of No. 124 Huntington avenue, who will lecture Tuesday afternoon at the Children's House, Boston Common, on "Diet for Children."

"Children would be better off if they stopped eating candy," said Dr. Doherty in discussing the subject. "They can get along with a very small amount of sugar—much less than they now use. They should get their supply of sugar through fruit and simple desserts such as custards and rice puddings. A little should be given them in cocoa and on cereals."

"Once children taste candy they want it. It was found during the examination of children in the schools that a great many teeth were decayed as a result of eating too much candy."

Dr. Doherty declared that when Food Administrator Endicott said he wanted men to give up using sugar altogether in order that children might have it he did not mean that children should increase the amount that they should have.

DEAD GIRL, ILL, SAW LIFE'S HOPE BLASTED

Believe Charles River Victim Felt Disappointed in Ambition to Be Teacher

Fear that an illness that forced her to leave school would prevent her from becoming a school teacher was the motive for the supposed suicide by drowning of Mabel Ward, the young Cambridge girl whose body was found floating in the Charles River Basin yesterday.

This was the theory advanced today by Rev. Frederic H. Knight, superintendent of the Little Wanderers' Home on South Huntington avenue, where the girl had been placed in her childhood and from which she had been placed with a couple near Cottage Farm bridge as their daughter.

This couple are today heartbroken over the death of the girl they had grown to love as their own child.

"So far as I can figure out the only reason why she might have committed suicide was because of a fear that she could not become a school teacher as planned, on account of spinal trouble," said Superintendent Knight today. "She left high school because of trouble with her spine and it may be that she drowned herself on account of the fear that she could not teach school. A note which she left was half full of jokes. In the note she mentioned something about not being able to be a school teacher because of leaving school.

RECORD IS LACKING.

Supt. Knight says that the officials of the home do not know the real name of the girl or who her parents in the home is dead.

were. The person who brought her

"Formerly they did not make records like we do today," said Supt. Knight," and I realize that the public may feel that we are trying to hide something. But we really are not. We do not know who her parents were and we do not know whether her real name is Mabel Ward, although she has always been known by that name to us.

"She was brought to the Little Wanderers Home when she was a baby. For the purpose of securing a better record of the case our agents some years ago tried to learn something of her antecedents, but they went up against a stone wall. They could learn nothing about her. It may be that the superintendent, who was here when she entered, knew the child's history, but he is dead. So is the person who brought her here.

"There are many puzzling features to the case. The girl was well provided for. The people who adopted her, although regular adoption papers were not made out, treated her as their own child and gave her a good education. They loved her as if she had been their own flesh and blood, and today they are heartbroken over her death.

WAS A GOOD SWIMMER.

"One of the strange feature of the case is that she was a really good swimmer an dwas very fond of the water. She was visiting friends at the time she disappeared a week ago. The place where her body was found was not far from where she lived.

"She was very much in our home life and there was no love affair connected with the case."

Medical Examiner George B. Magrath is to examine the body of "Mabel Ward" and determine how she died. When found in the river the young girl whose history is apparently a sealed book, wore a gymnasium costume consisting of a blouse, bloomers and tennis shoes.

MILK VALUE DROPS AS THE PRICE GOES UP

In spite of the advancing price of milk, which is now 15 cents a quart in Greater Boston, the quality of the milk used in Massachusetts has steadily been lowered in the past ten years, according to Herman C. Lythgoe, head of food and drug division of the Massachusetts State Department of Health. Since 1909 the quality of milk has reduced in food value from 354 calories per pound to 349 calories per pound in 1918. This decrease is due, Mr. Lythgoe says, to the fact that farmers have generally substituted Holstein cows for Jerseys, which give richer but less milk. Skimming and watering of milk by dealers is also given as a cause for the decrease in food value.

CREDITORS SEEK MISS DRAKE OF 'WAR CHARITY'

Pink Pajamas Among Articles Not Paid for by Promoters of Famous Corps for Girls

Angry storekeepers from Bayside, L. I., today sought to locate Miss Ethel Langdon Drake, formerly of Lincoln, sponsor for the "Drake Section Sanitaire," who disappeared from the Copley-Plaza Monday. They want their money.

Bills for six pair of pink pajamas totaling $12 besides butcher and grocery bills, head the list of debts contracted by the promoters of the "Drake Section Sanitaire" in connection with the "training camp" established by Miss Drake at Bayside, L. I.

Residence at Bayside recall the sudden abandonment of the Drake camp by a bevy of young society girls following the charges by Assistant District Attorney Kilroe of New York (Manhattan).

Among the unconventional features of the Bayside camp was a daily "pajama parade" by the young women to and from the nearest bathing beach on long Island Sound.

However Miss Drake and her companion—the estranged wife of a British army officer (by her own confession) Mrs. Mary E. Symons—are not in Boston. According to the clerk of the Copley-Plaza Hotel, where they were stopping last week, Miss Drake and Mrs. Symons vacated their suite, No. 614, on August 5.

Today a delegation of Bayside merchants called upon District Attorney Swann in New York to ask his aid in collecting bills contracted by Miss Drake's organization.

Mr. Swann also received a number of letters containing similar requests from other merchants of the town. In all the unpaid bills are said to amount to about $1,000.

In addition to the bill for pajamas there was a butcher's bill for $22.11 for chop meat, corn beef, boiled ham and salt pork, and a grocery bill for $27.00 for molasses, lemons, oranges and cans of salmon.

LITTLE ENCOURAGEMENT.

The district attorney told the merchants who called on him he was sorry he could not help them, but said that their only redress so far as he could see was a civil action. The merchants angrily declared they would take some to get their money.

Miss Drake, head of the alleged war charities organization, following a feud with Assistant District Attorney Kilroe, decided last week to discontinue the activities of the organization and turn over $14,000 collected in N. Roosevelt, the Presidential candidate.

Following the investigation by Mr. Kilroe the fifty girls composing the "Drake section" in camp at Bayside immediately found their beds and went home.

After the action of Mr. Swann, the agent of $28,000, which had been collected by Miss Drake and which was being forwarded to Miss Drake, was held up.

'STICK TO YOUR JOB,' SAYS W. B. WILSON

"We Must Rise Above Profits or Wages"; What Are You Doing to Win the War?

"A chain is only as strong as its weakest link. You are a link in the chain of production. If you do not play the game you are weakening the chain. Stick to your job until the United States Employment Service asks you to change. In the phraseology of a navy war orders issued by Secretary of Labor W. B. Wilson, Americans must understand 'American service is service.'

"Germany's strength is in the willingness of her people and army to sacrifice their personal interests. They see the big picture and realize the chance to win the world and that is why they have put the prize in German authority.

"We must learn that the right to rule rests upon the right to serve mankind. Americans must see in the willingness to serve the highest duty and privilege and make even a fortune secondary.

"We must not ignore thinking too much of profits or wages. We should be ashamed to make money or are seeking just because of the war.

"When your Secretary returns they will ask us only one question.

"What did you do to help win the war?"

CHARGE WINTHROP MEN TRESPASSED ON WHARF

Charged with trespassing upon a harbor defense system wharf at Winthrop, William Eskridge and Eli Barlow, both of Winthrop, were held in $500 bail when arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes. The men, who were arrested by Deputy United States Marshals, are employed as a captain and an engineer on a power boat which was used in conveying men to work in and about the Winthrop harbor.

GAVE LIFE TO ENLIST, GETS MILITARY FUNERAL

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 10.—Arthur Arant, twenty-one, was buried with military honors here because he gave up his life in an attempt to enter the military service of his country. Arant had been rejected by army medical examiners, who said he must be accepted if he underwent an operation. He went to a hospital and had the operation performed, but failed to recover from its effects.

WANTS FOE PRISONERS PLACED ON TRANSPORTS

Congressman Tague would ship German prisoners on transports as a reprisal for the placing of American prisoners in danger zones. To that end he issues the following statement:

"Since the German authorities insist upon exposing our boys to protect their cities from air raids, I think they should be given a dose of their own medicine. I can think of no better way of employing these German prisoners than by subjecting them to the vengeance of their own countrymen and in that way serve notice on the Kaiser that two can play the game."

RECRUITING STOPS AT LOCAL STATIONS

Following orders from Washington the local recruiting stations have stopped doing business as far as actual enlistment is concerned. Scores of disappointed men visited the stations seeking further information, but they were told that until Congress passes on the new draft bill there would be nothing doing. As the regulations did not prevent it, quite a number of men were examined and their names listed, but no inducements to enter the service were made by the recruiting officers.

BOSTON WAR-BRIDE MADE WIDOW BY BATTLE

Mrs. Hugh C. Blanchard, wife of Lieutenant Blanchard of the 104th U. S. Infantry. The latter has just been reported as killed in action in the fighting at the Marne.

The death in the fighting in France of Lieutenant Hugh C. Blanchard of Company L, 104th Infantry, brings a sad ending to the romance of the young officer and his bride of two years. Lieutenant Blanchard is named in today's casualty list as killed in action. The 104th Infantry, to which he belonged, has borne the brunt of the heaviest fighting of the war in the recent battle of the Marne and the Vesle. The lieutenant's bride was Miss Mignon Von der Luft, of No. 1118 Commonwealth avenue, Brighton.

At the outbreak of the war the couple had been engaged for some time. Lieutenant Blanchard was then a member of the old Eighth Massachusetts infantry. With the call for the mobilization of the militia it was decided to rush the wedding, and accordingly arrangements were made to hold it shortly after the men went into camp.

Another engaged couple, friends of the Blanchards, also decided to have their wedding ahead of schedule and accordingly the two weddings were held the same day, June 22, 1916. The other couple were Capt. James F. Coupal, M. D., assistant surgeon in the Eighth Infantry and Miss Martha Lillian Wilfert of No. 58 Second Brook avenue, Roxbury.

The marriage of Lieutenant Blanchard and Miss Von der Luft took place in the rectory of the church of the Immaculate Conception in Malden, Rev. Richard Nagle, P. L., officiating. Immediately after the ceremony the couple went to St. Paul's Catholic church at Robin Hood street, Roxbury, and attended the wedding of their friends. Both grooms, who had been called to the colors and who were in camp at Framingham, were allowed short leave in which to be married.

Lieutenant Blanchard is the son of John Blanchard of No. 572 Riverside avenue, Medford, and a brother of Captain William H. Blanchard, M. D., of the 101st Medical Corps.

Mrs. Blanchard was the daughter of Mrs. Nanna von der Luft of Brighton and a graduate of the Girl's High school.

PREFER STUBBORN CHILD CHARGES AGAINST ELOPER

Lakeside, Aug. 10.—Miss Josephine E. Allard, the fifteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Allard, Mendon road, whose elopment with William Mulvey, aged thirty-five years, resulted in the latter being arrested was in the local court on charge of being a stubborn child, preferred by her father who asks that she be placed in some school for a time.

She told officers who headed them off near Nipsnet Park, Mendon, that Mulvey arranged that she go with him, and that he arranged her departure from her room by a ladder. A note was left behind at the Allard home stating the girl had started for New York to be married.

COUPLE IN PLOT TO SWINDLE U. S. ON TRIAL

New York, Aug. 10.—Miss Isabella Ferer, vice-president, and Michael Polsky, factory superintendent of the Acme Equipment Company, were placed on trial in the United States District Court, Brooklyn, charged with bribery and conspiracy growing out of a plot to sell defective barracks bags to the government. If they are convicted on all counts they may each be sent to jail for twenty-six years and fined $75,000.

Want 50-Cent Raise

City laborers of Malden have petitioned the Street and Water Commission for an increase of fifty cents in their daily wage which is now $2 per day. The Commission will probably refer the men to the City Council for an appropriation before granting any increase.

New Haven lost ⅜, at 39½; and United Shoe ¼, at 39.

WIDOW WEARS WAR STAR OVER HER HEART

Death in Battle for World Freedom Closes Schooldays Romance

By MARIE DUNBAR.

Only a year ago Mrs. Esther L. Lawton was a happy war bride—the wife of Private Thomas G. Lawton, Company B, 102d Machine Gun Battalion.

Today Mrs. Lawton is a war widow. Her husband died June 8 in Base Hospital No. 18, France, from wounds received in the battle of Seicheprey, April 20.

Mrs. Lawton has laid aside her white bridal robes of one year ago for the widow's black. But the cruel wound made by the death of her husband is softened because she knows her husband died bravely and for a magnificent cause.

The sombre black of Mrs. Lawton's mourning is relieved by a gold star, which she wears pinned just above her heart. On her left hand gleams her wedding ring and right next to it, on her little finger, is a service ring. It is a gold signet ring with a gold star on the raised base of the ring.

Both the gold star and the finger ring are original with Mrs. Lawton, she said that she wears them instead of the arm bands and crepe, as they are less conspicuous.

The death of Private Lawton shatters or shall we say glorifies, one of the sweetest romances that has taken place in Boston.

WERE SCHOOLMATES.

Mrs. Lawton, formerly Miss Esther L. McManus, daughter of the late John A. McManus, former member of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and Private Lawton learned their A. B. C's together.

They practically grew up together in South Boston. When the call for men came Private Lawton was among the first to enter his country's service, enlisting on April 17, 1917.

He sailed for France in September, 1917. About six weeks before he sailed he married Esther L. McManus. He often told his comrades that he did not fear to go into the thickest of the fray as he felt a superhuman courage and strength which radiated from the ones he loved at home.

After being injured he was told that he would be discharged and sent home as soon as he was sufficiently recovered. He died with a smile on his lips and the words, "I am going home to Esther." One hour and a half before he died he dictated a beautiful letter to his wife.

Lieutenant Barry Keenan of Dorchester, in charge of the platoon to which Private Lawton belonged, wrote Mrs. Lawton that her husband "was one of the best and bravest soldiers I have known and I know he rests in peace as he died a hero and not being afraid to get into the thickest of the fray and face death."

Wilson Hughes, No. 1 Platoon U. S. Infantry, gave three quarts of blood in a transfusion in an attempt to save Private Lawton's life. Hughes was at the time convalescing in the hospital.

FIGHTS OFF FOE.

When hit by the shrapnel which cost his life, Private Lawton became unconscious. Two Prussians attempted to take him captive. Private Warren Anderson, a staunch friend of Private Lawton's, rescued his friend "Tom," fought off the Prussians and made his way with his wounded companion back to the lines.

At the time of his enlistment Private Lawton was an employe of the Armour Leather Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawton were married August 6. Mrs. Lawton is twenty this month, while her husband was twenty-one at the time of his death.

"DIG" FOR RED CROSS, URGES INVALID AIRMAN

Lawrence, Aug. 10.—"Whenever they ask you for a few cents to help the Red Cross, for humanity's sake don't be a piker, dig!" says Corporal Jack Holland of this city, who has been invalided home after sustaining injuries to his knee in the aviation service at the battle front.

Corporal Holland is the son of the late Philip Holland and Mrs. Julia Holland of No. 1062 Essex street.

"Going back? Well I should hope so. It's lonesome here with the boys over there and I wouldn't miss the fun for anything."

OLD AGE A CRIME!

Some people are young at 60—red-cheeked, ruddy and vigorous. Others are old at 40—joints beginning to stiffen up a bit; eyes beginning to lag and lose its sprightliness; occasional touches of pain in the back, feet; rheumatic cause, and possibly a twinge of rheumatic pain.

In most cases these are the danger signals to warn you that the kidneys are not promptly doing their work, of throwing off the poisons that are always forming in the body. Do not let these natural warnings is a crime against yourself. If you notice these symptoms you can find prompt relief in GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. For more than 200 years this has been the recognized remedy for kidney and bladder ailments.

GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules are imported direct from the laboratories at Haarlem, Holland. Get them at your druggists. Do not take a substitute. In boxes, three sizes.—Advertisement.

'OH, LADY! LADY!' NEXT MORE COMING

"Oh, Lady! Lady!"

Now what kind of a title is that for a play and what kind of a play would be likely to be wandering around with such a title? What does it mean, anyhow, and if so, why?

We won't have to wait any later than Monday night to find out, for the piece with the exclamatory title will open the season at the Wilbur on that occasion.

My suspicion is that "Oh, Lady! Lady!" owes its name to the fact that its Princess predecessor, "Oh, Boy!" was considerable of a success, and Ray Comstock, after "Very Good Eddie," and "Nobody Home" has come to the conclusion that slangy titles make the box office man smile.

The Princess Theatre is a small place, much smaller than the Wilbur. Standing against the backdrop, an ordinary sized chorus girl can almost shake hands with a man in the back row of the orchestra. This makes for intimacy. The stage is too small to admit of a large chorus, so the management has to secure an especially pretty small one. Take three or four good looking young actors, a group of winsome willowy winners in very fashionable gowns, a few tinkle tinkle melodies by Jerome Kern, and a plot so mild that you can arrive anytime before the final curtain and not realize that anything has happened, and you have the recipe for a Princess Theatre show.

I haven't seen "Oh, Lady! Lady!" but I am willing to wager one Leghorn hat which hasn't been cleaned only twice, that it fits this description.

Of course you don't get quite so much intimacy in the Wilbur, but by the time the show gets to Boston its New York reputation hypnotizes you quite satisfactorily.

There are a lot of nice young people in "Oh, Lady! Lady!" including Vivienne Segal, Carl Randall, Margot Kelly, Harry C. Brown, and Theresa Maxwell Conover.

Some Artist Himself.

There are a lot of pale people who devote motherly attention to the drama. When enough of them gather in one place they start a New Art Playhouse and produce pale plays, which are available for production because the so-called commercial managers won't take them.

Such artistic propositions get a lot of space in magazines and receive more or less serious attention from critics when they attack the commercial managers who are usually accused of prostituting art for the sake of the pocketbook.

J. J. Shubert is a commercial manager. He proudly admits it and has no hesitation in granting that he puts on plays for profits if possible. He began life as a theatre usher, and worked into the business through the box office. When the drama uplifters get together they are apt to point to him as a horrible example of what they are trying to overthrow.

Nevertheless J. J. Shubert personally produced "Maytime." How are we going to account for it? "Maytime" is one of the tenderest, most romantic and sweetly sentimental plays that ever was set to music.

Far more than most plays its success is dependent upon its production. A crude or careless arrangement of the settings, stage pictures and business would ruin it as easily as dropping a bottle of ink over a white silk gown. Its pathos would readily slip over into bathos and its shade might rapidly rumple its lights if they were not perfectly controlled.

And J. J. Shubert did it. If you think back a few seasons you will remember the very artistic stage by the same box office wizard, while the number of brilliant productions turned out by the firm's hired men are not few.

Mizi Mixed It.

"Maytime" is a musical entertainment where a sentimental person can actually shed tears, so close to tragedy does it sometimes run.

They tell me that "Head Over Heels" started out along similar lines and Colonel Henry Savage confidently expected that the lump would come into the throat of the customer on several occasions during the progress of that little operetta.

Mizi's vivacious and laugh provoking little methods apparently spoiled its original form the story of the little girl "top-mounter" of the foreign acrobatic troupe had moments of comedy and pathos. Quivering lips and furtive tears were intended to be inflicted upon the spectator.

Probably because she lived with laughter in them came too close and too often, and more likely still because Mizi's is a frolicsome nature, Colonel Savage has seen his drama in music turned into the gayest of plays a musical accompaniment. Tragedy can be tragic, but she doesn't see much about it and so "Head Over Heels" became as merry as a marriage bell.

In the new edition of the piece the laughter has been carefully fostered. The rather sinister Papa Bambinetti of George Marion has been turned into a very funny Wop by Judels. Robert Emmett Keane has some very amusing scenes, and new musical numbers and pretty girls in increased forces make "Head Over Heels" a very cheerful entertainment.

German Comedians Lucky.

It was freely predicted last season that such German dialect comedians as Louis Mann and Sam Bernard might just as well go on a vacation to some desert island because the American people were in no mood to laugh at Teutonic twists of language.

What happened?

Absolutely the contrary. The biggest dramatic hit of the season outside New York was the production of "Friendly Enemies," in which the two sausage comedians starred jointly, jabbered away in German dialect and absolutely carried their audiences off their feet with enthusiasm.

Bernard and Mann ran all season in the piece and then moved into New York, where the play is equally successful and a long run is assured.

Rather than let Boston wait until next season for "Friendly Enemies," Al Woods is forming another company which will give the play at the Plymouth Monday, August 26. In place of Bernard and Louis Mann, Lew Fields and Charlie Winninger will head the Boston cast, a pair who ought to give quite as good a performance as the originals. Winninger is the comedian whose impersonations of Leo Ditrichstein have been the hit of several of the George M. Cohan revues, which played at the Colonial Theatre.

That "Bath" Sounds Good.

We have come to look for a dashing farce to open the season every year at the Park Square. "Fair and Warmer" and "Two Beds" did the trick for two seasons past, and now comes "Parlor-Bedroom and Bath," which will serve for 1918. It sounds like a good Summer show, particularly the "Bath" part of the title. Florence Moore, one of the funniest of the female comedians, heads the cast. Joe Di Pesa, the irrepressible publicity purveyor of the Park Square, urges in his announcement that she is a feminine Charlie Chaplin, but as an admirer of Miss Moore, I protest, she has regular feet and she eats her custard pie instead of throwing it.

"Parlor-Bedroom and Bath," according to report, is a bit swift for a staid village like Boston, but if it is more than "Fair and Warmer" it will have to hump itself.

High-Toned Menials

To induce the first women of Great Britain to do menial duties, such as scrubbing floors, washing windows and mopping walks for motion picture production was one of the tasks that revolved upon David W. Griffith while producing "The Great Love," his new big photoplay, which will be given its first showings at the Beacon Theatre throughout all of next week.

Chief among these women were Lady Diana Manners, the most beautiful woman in England; Elizabeth Asquith, Countess Wemyss and Lady Lavery. They were called upon to perform menial tasks in the course of their duties on behalf of the War Relief, Red Cross and other war activities brought into being by the great conflict, and they assumed the attire of servants and performed the tasks for Mr. Griffith's camera exactly as it is done in real life.

Mr. Griffith got special help and encouragement in the making of the picture from Queen Alexandra and many of the leaders of London social activities. He and King George also complimented him upon his production of "Intolerance" which the monarch had seen, and assured him of their sympathy with the artistic production dealing with the war and British wartime activities which he might project.

WILBUR THEATRE

"Oh, Lady! Lady!" is the title of the fifth New York Princess Theatre musical comedy masterpiece which F. Ray Comstock and William Elliott will present at the Wilbur Theatre next Monday evening, with the original New York cast and production intact from a run of seven months in New York.

"Oh, Lady! Lady!", like the former Princess Theatre offerings, "Nobody Home," "Very Good Eddie" and "Oh, Boy," is the work of Guy Bolton and P. G. Wodehouse, the musical score by Jerome Kern. The New York cast embraces the names of Vivienne Segal, last seen here as the prima donna of "The Blue Paradise"; Carl Randall of the "Follies fame, Florence Shirley, Margot Kelly, Constance Binney, Reginald Mason, Edward Emery, Theresa Maxwell Conover and Frank Fisher and Harry C. Browne.

The story tells of an interrupted wedding ceremony. As the wedding rehearsal is being carried on the bridegroom hears that a former sweetheart has come to the city for breach of promise. A friend kindly consents to help him out of his difficulty by engaging a young woman to pose as his bride-to-be when the former affinity arrives.

AMERICA'S ANSWER

History is repeating itself daily on the battle fronts. The advance or principle is dominating the attacks of autocracy and oppression, with the end not very far distant. Every blow delivered by the allied forces is given for a purpose and objective end, and that end "to free this world forever from the mailed fist of Germany." Sustained by that thought and object, the only result that can possibly come is—Victory.

The marvelous achievements of our army, navy and aeroplect across the sea is graphically and comprehensively presented in the United States government official war picture—"America's Answer"—coming to the Majestic Theatre next Monday night.

This animated pictorial record of what our boys have done and are doing in France is more than a mere picture. It is as official government chart that has registered upon its face—the obstacles overcome and accomplishments won by the men, under the command of General John J. Pershing, since their landing in France, June last year.

GAIETY THEATRE

A distinct addition to the better burlesque movement will be seen at the Gayety Theatre next week, where the 18-19 Edition Liberty Girls will be presented. The production is virtually a musical comedy and boasts of a brand new book written this past season for Messrs. Drew and Campbell by Mr. Joseph A. Mitchell. The book was written around Mr. Jack Conway, popularly called "our best Irish comedian," and includes in its make-up a host of new witticisms, comedy situations and musical numbers. Mr. Conway will be seen at his best, which means a great deal to followers of burlesque, for there is no more legitimate comedian of the Erin type on any stage than Mr. Conway.

The action of the burlesque takes place at a young ladies' seminary on the Hudson river, New York, and shows the efforts of Mr. Tim Reilly trying to impersonate an absent professor. From there the whole party, including the Seminary Girls, travels to the steamship Columbia and the act closes with the Columbia being shipwrecked in a storm. The second act portrays the troubles of the party on the island Neverwas, where many peculiar adventures are had with the people of that distant place.

TREMONT THEATRE

In addition to Mizi, now recognized as the foremost prima donna comedienne, there are two of the best-known comedians of the stage in the cast of "Head Over Heels." Robert Emmett Keane, generally praised as one of the most individual light comedians of recent years, owing to his real "hits" both in London and with Mizi, Charles Judels is famous for his dialect comedy, particularly as a Italian. Jerome Kern has written a new song number for Mr. Judels. It is accompanied by feature work by the Run-Away Four Troupe of acrobats.

COPLEY THEATRE

In "Brewster's Millions," which will begin its third week at the Copley Theatre Monday evening, there are three features which contribute to the great success it has met with. The play itself is redolent of genuine and wholesome humor, its acting by the Henry Jewett Players gives it the reality of life, and its stage settings, especially in the yacht scene with its representation of a storm at sea, provide a sensational touch that is not unwelcome. Throughout "Brewster's Millions" offers the best of Summer entertainment in the theatre.

ORPHEUM THEATRE

A vaudeville bill of unusual excellence is announced for the first half of the week at the Orpheum Theatre. It is in all respects an all-star one. Harry Rose, the well known "nut comedian," will appear in a new potpourri of comicalities. Others on the bill will be Holden & Herron in songs and comedy; the one-act comedy, "Why Worry"; Bernard & Merritt; Straziers' Animals, a troupe of trained animal comedians; and Bissell & Scott in songs and dances. On the screen there will be shown the latest News Pictures, a Mack Sennett comedy, and the photoplay, "Green Eyes," picturing Dorothy Dalton. The entire bill changes on Thursday, when the leading act will be Maurice Samuels & Co., in a new edition of "At Ellis Island," and on the screen, Clara Kimball Young in "The Savage Woman." The usual Sunday bill will be given.

MODERN THEATRE

David W. Griffith's newest production, "The Great Love," will be the week's attraction at the Modern Theatre, where it will be given its first Boston showing. Since this famous producer made his epochal production, "The Birth of a Nation," which was shown in first-class theatres as a regular attraction, his succeeding productions, "Intolerance" and "Hearts of the World," have been presented in like manner. So it has become the popular supposition that his future photoplays would not depart from this custom. But some time ago he made a contract for a series of productions that were to be presented to the public through what is called a regular program, before his new photoplay reaches his public through a regular motion picture theatre, and the Modern has drawn the honor for the first Boston showings. This photoplay is like unto its predecessor, a story of the great war, and is penned by the prodigious "a mighty story of woman's regeneration by war."

SHUBERT THEATRE

"Maytime," the musical play with a plot, came to Boston a week ago with a reputation that had preceded it by many months and for once the public accepted the New York verdict, for "Maytime," declared all of the critics, is delightful. Moreover, the cast at the Shubert is the identical New York cast that appeared in the piece when it was staged last August 16 which brings to mind that the anniversary will be observed in Boston next Saturday. The principal players are Charles Purcell, the attractive Peggy Wood and William Norris. Others in the large cast are Maude Odell, Douglas J. Wood, Teddy Webb, Arthur Albro, Rose Winter, Edna Temple, Minna Valleri, Edward F. Nannery, Genevieve Temple, Yra Jeane.

PARAGON PARK AND PALM GARDEN

Special features will mark today and tomorrow at Paragon Park and its famous Palm Garden. Patrons who have delayed their visits to this resort of unexcelled amusements will now doubtless hurry to avail themselves of the opportunity these closing weeks of the season to see what wonderful attractions of many kinds Manager Dodge has provided this season. All who have visited Paragon concede the management's claim that it is richer in importance and variety of attractions this season than ever before.

There is always something new to see in the cabaret in the Palm Garden, although those ever popular features, Mermaids and her diving beauties, and the "Paragon Revue of 1918" continue to be the main drawing cards.

NORUMBEGA PARK

What is said to be the largest open-air theatre in the world could not supply the tremendous demand for seats for "The Old Homestead," with William Lawrence as Uncle Josh, at Norumbega Park last week. So many requests, entreaties, even demands, for seats have been received that it has been decided to extend the engagement one week.

FENWAY THEATRE

Corinne Griffith, the young and beautiful Vitagraph star, adds much to her reputation as a screen actress by her portrayal of the role of Jacqueline Carteret in "Love Watches," showing at the Fenway on the first three days of the coming week. The role was made famous by Billie Burke in London and New York, and Miss Griffith's interpretation of the role measures fully up to the high standard set by Miss Burke.

GLOBE THEATRE

The bill announced at Loew's Globe Theatre for the entire week promises abundant pleasure, enlisting as it does three prominent stars of the screen, Norma Talmadge will be shown in her latest photoplay, "The Safety Curtain," and Enid Bennett will be shown in "The Vamp," in which she portrays a girl who innocently practises the arts of the vampire until she finds that she has placed herself in a dangerous position difficult to escape from. Patty Arbuckle will be shown in his chief humors in "Good Night, Nurse." The usual Sunday show of vaudeville and films will be given.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

The all-photoplay bill announced for the first half of the week at Loew's Columbia Theatre will include Theda Bara in the William Fox production, "The Clemenceau Case," the story upon which follows the famous star to enact a favorite style of role. The other photoplay will be "The Ordeal of Rosetta," in which Alice Brady is pictured in a dual role, the two daughters of an Italian professor who comes to America. One of the girls falls victim to a conspiring man, and the other sets out to avenge her, but the climax proves to be a happy one.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Mlle. Dazie and company with a revue of modern and classical dances will appear as the headliner at Keith's Theatre this week. This engagement is an extraordinary one for the American dancerine of international fame. Miss Dazie has always been appreciated by Keith's audiences and it is her belief that after the long rest she has had her toe dancing will be more attractive than ever before. Besides her new dances, Miss Dazie has many new gowns.

With Miss Dazie on the bill are many other Keith favorites. Andrew Tomes and Rena Parker will appear in vaudeville for the first time since closing with the great Broadway success "Pio Pio." Jimmie and Minnie Allen, two of the cleverest artists on the vaudeville stage, will appear in a great song and dance revue. Joseph C. Bernard and company will offer a new skit, "Who Is She?" Stephens and Hollister, in a new comedy "In California"; the Eddie Miller Duo, in a skit entitled "Brothers of Harmony," and the Polsen Sisters, in the latest novelty in sharpshooting, are other features.

With this good bill the management has arranged for an extraordinary act, Billie Montgomery and George Perry, who will present "The Two Bachelors of Art."

The latest government war pictures and the Hearst-Pathe Weekly will also be shown.

OUR LUMBER JACKS IN FRANCE

American lumber jacks, turned loose in the virgin forests of France, are providing the timber that is making it possible for the American engineers to accomplish feats that will gain for them a prominent place in the history of the war. The activities of the lumber jacks and the extensive operations of the forestry division of the army are shown in some detail in the Second United States Official War Picture, "America's Answer" which begins an engagement at the

In the forestry division the United States had imposed on it a tremendous undertaking which has been carried through with complete success. France gave over her untouched forests for the work and America sent over an organization of foresters and followed them up with knights of the saw and axe. The trees were felled and shaped into timbers. These timbers were used by the engineers in the construction of extensive port facilities, bases, piers, railroads, shops, refrigerating and storage plants and cantonments.

The lumber jacks seen in action are evidently the product of the north woods, enlisted for service overseas in their particular line of endeavor. The scenes of felling monarch trees might well have been taken in the redwood forests of Washington and Oregon.

The miles of piers and constructed port facilities will stand for years after the war as a monument to the energy and ability of the American engineers and workers of the Forestry Regiments.

Clara In the Jungle.

Jungle scenes play prominently in Clara Kimball Young's new photoplay, "The Savage Woman," which will be given its first showings at Loew's Orpheum Theatre the last half of next week, and, perforce, wild beasts were employed to properly give atmosphere to the said jungle. To this end the menagerie of the studio was close at hand in the taking of the scenes.

Some friends of the director strolled over one day during the making of the picture, and his assistant was enrolled to take them around to see the animals. To get to their cages the visitors had to go through a long narrow studio that was so piled with props, etc., that there was left only a narrow passage about six feet wide, very dark and long.

After seeing the animals they were returning to Miss Young's set along the narrow passage, when one of the property boys perched upon a set twenty feet high yelled down to them in a very scared voice that one of the lions was out and was coming down the narrow passage. The party was scared so that they stopped in their tracks, seemingly unable to move. They could not see clearly, but could discern the big skulking figure of an animal coming toward them.

Instinctively they grasped each other awaiting for the onslaught they felt sure was coming. Suddenly a man came around the corner. He immediately took in the situation and yelled: "Don't move until I get there. I wonder how that dog got out." The relief of the visitors can be imagined when they learned that it was a dog and not one of the savage cats that was tracking them.

An Unassuming Star.

Simple and unassuming as a young debutante and thoroughly unconscious of the unusual possibilities for the motion picture screen of her exquisite beauty is Marion Davies, the star of "Cecilia of the Pink Roses," the photoplay which will be shown at the Langston Theatre the first part of next week. She apparently does not realize how almost overnight she has become an established factor in the motion picture world. In her conversation with an interviewer she showed through her words how gracefully modesty sits upon her even in the glory of her triumphs.

"I would not be human," said Miss Davies, "were I not happy over the success that has been met in this my first picture. And I feel ever so grateful to the company that I have the honor of heading."

BEACON THEATRE

Right on the heels of his great photoplay, second only to "Hearts of the World," David W. Griffith presents his newest spectacle, "The Great Love," this time at a theatre exclusively devoted to motion pictures, and through all of the week at the Beacon Theatre this photoplay will be unrolled for its initial showings in Boston. It deals with woman's regeneration by the war, and is played by a notable company including Lillian Gish, Henry Walthall, George Fawcett, Robert Harron, George Siegmann, Maxfield Stanley, Rosemary Theby and Gloria Hope. Owing to the magnitude of this production there will be no companion photoplay, but there will also be shown short comedies and news pictures.

WALDRON'S CASINO

Waldron's Casino will be opened for the season with the performance of Monday matinee, August 19, by Barney Gerard's "De Luxe Girls" one of the largest and best equipped burlesque companies on the circuit.

ELEVATOR GIRLS FAST OUSTING THE MEN

The swan song of the elevator man is being sung.

Listen to this if you don't believe that the elevator men are doomed to be shifted to essential work and to the battlefront.

There are 2,318 elevator men in Boston.

There are 659 women elevator operators.

Of the 659 women operators 525 took out their licenses in the last two months.

This is the report given out to J. C. O'Kane, who has charge of the applications. Mr. O'Kane handles this department which is under the supervision of Herbert A. Wilson, building commissioner of Boston.

"There are no more accidents since women started to operate elevators," said Mr. O'Kane. "There are no licenses given to women for operating freight elevators. They run passenger elevators. The superintendents of all the buildings, stores and hotels in Boston are co-operating splendidly with this department. They give their girls instructions and teach them before they send them here for tests.

APPLICATIONS INCREASE DAILY.

"The girls must be qualified to run any kind of a car whether it is rope, electric or hydraulic, to name one of our tests. They must make their landings even with the floor, and they must know what to do in case the car does not operate properly. The number of applications by women operators is increasing daily.

As to the feminine operators this is what one of the oldest and largest real estate firms, which has many of the largest buildings in Boston under its supervising, says:

"We have few if any complaints concerning the girls as elevator operators. They are more cautious than men and more polite. They notice the little things more than men and this aids in making for their efficiency. They watch their signals better and all in all they are better than men. They are with us for at least the duration of the war."

DOING AS WELL AS MEN.

A representative of Williams & Bangs, who have about twenty girls in their various buildings, says that their girl operators are doing as good work as men, and that the company regards them as efficient in every way.

The superintendent of one of the old established stores in Boston and the one which hired girl elevator operators says:

"The women are doing splendid work. We feel that they are more courteous, more industrious and that they measure up in every respect to the men operators.

"The elevator operator is a novelty to many. As soon as this novelty wears off and the public realizes that the elevator operators are women doing real work everything will run along smoothly. Many women have shunned this occupation because they feel that it is not a woman's work. It is distinctly a woman's work and a war work. It releases the men to fight or do heavier work.

And then there is the elevator girl herself. Just where does she figure in this war occupation.

"IT'S EASY," SAYS ONE GIRL.

"It's easy, if you just keep your head," remarked one of the elevator girls. "Of course, you have to have a certain amount of patience. The ideal elevator girl, the public thinks, should always be smiling, have the room number and name of every room in the building all stored away in her head, and take all the joshing that the public wishes to give.

"But, you see, it is not so bad. When our uniforms are furnished us we do not have to spend much of clothes. Then in the stores they pay $16 a week and most buildings pay $14 and $15 a week. You are advanced if you stay at the same place long enough. Some of the head girls in department stores get $18 a week.

If you think the elevator girl has lost her femininity, watch a few of them powder their noses.

ORDER TO STOP MAKING OF PASSENGER AUTOS

Washington, Aug. 10.—The War Industries Board today notified the Automobile Chamber of Commerce that there would be practically no steel available for passenger autos, and warned the manufacturers to transfer their plants to war work by the first of next year, if they desire to hold their business and their organization together.

"We find that manufacturers have voluntarily agreed among themselves to curtail the production of passenger cars," wrote Frank Scott to the board to the Chamber. "This is a step in the right direction, but further curtailment is inevitable.

"Fairness to your industry impels us to frankly state that the situation as it presents itself today indicates very clearly that there will be little if any, of the principal materials required in the manufacture of passenger cars available for such war industries after requirements shall be provided for."

The War Industries Board cannot at this time make any promise whatever regarding the output of your industry of steel, rubber or other materials for any definite period in advance.

"We strongly believe that it is to the interest of your members and all other manufacturers of passenger automobiles to undertake to get on 100 per cent war work as rapidly as possible, not later than Jan. 1, 1919, for in no other way can you be sure of the continuance of your business and the preservation of your organization."

SAYS HUSBAND WOULDN'T KEEP THE HOUSE WARM

Worcester, Aug. 10.—The separate support case of Mrs. Jennie McKenzie against her husband, Franklin, is being tried in Probate Court. She claims her husband would not keep their tenement warm last Winter, and on when Spring came she left him after five months of wedded life. Mr. Kenzie claims he bought five tons of coal last Winter, that his wife frequented movie shows and refused to permit him to have a religious meeting in the house.

Prepare for Great Things to Come, Urges Clark

New York, Aug. 10.—"This war is not going to last forever, and now is the time we must prepare for the new peaceful opportunities that will be ours after the passing of peace," said Champ Clark, Speaker of the House of Representatives, at the Liberty Loan gathering at the Bronx International Exposition.

"We must strongly cement our friendship and trade relations with our neighbors," continued the Speaker.

"After the war we will be in possession of the greatest merchant marine we have had since the days of the Civil War. Therefore, independent of our transportation problem, we must have some foreign trade brought home to us by this way.

"You and I know things must be done soon to remedy this. We will either waterway and railroads, to which some of those already in use will be put, or we will build new."

RESTRICTIONS ON BEEF ARE LIFTED

Washington, Aug. 10.—The Food Administration has released hotels eating places and householders from the beef restrictions. Eating houses were under voluntary obligation to serve beef at only one meal a day, while households in the United States agreed to voluntary beef conditions of not exceeding one pound and a half a week, including bone, for each person.

A sudden and early run of cattle to the market brought the release a month before was expected. Drought in Texas, Oklahoma and the Southwest and in Montana and adjacent areas in the Northwest is forcing light cattle into the packing centres.

The lack of rain is endangering the meat herds in this territory and, though truckloads of water are being hauled in, not enough can be shipped to save the cattle, and it is necessary to ship them out while they are really finished for the market.

SPECIAL SERVICE AT ST. PAUL'S TOMORROW

Of interest to everybody, but especial interest to Britishers and Canadians, evening service at the Cathedral Church of St. Paul tomorrow, August 11, will be a special service of recognition of the English Grand Fleet and the navies of the Allies.

Those having relatives in the United States naval service, or any other war service, are especially invited. Along with other patriotic songs and hymns, "God Save the King" will be sung.

The Rev. Edward T. Sullivan of Trinity Church, Newton Centre, will deliver an address on "The Hound of God; The British Fleet, the Guardian of Our Liberty and of Christian Civilization," a service in recognition of the silent watchers who stand guard in the mists and storms of the North Sea.

WAR ECONOMIES PRACTICED BY AUTO MEN

By C. F. DONNOCKER.

That the automobile dealers are doing their power in assist the Government in saving for the war is evidenced from the steps the local dealers and the National Association of Automobile Dealers have taken to cut down their overhead expenses.

A resolution was recently adopted by the association which will have a great saving of labor of some kind with a great conservation of repairs, that of leaving the idea of the service people out of the question. Also a saving will be made to another resolution, which puts the parts and accessories on a cash basis, thereby making a great deal of bookkeeping, and for which a saving will be made for months. Postal-A-Trade, another Boston trade body, also has adopted resolutions to help the Government in every respect, co-operating with the Committee on National Defense. Both of these bodies have been active in helping the Government in every way since the war started.

I believe that this Fall will see a good healthy business, and especially optimistic over the outlook for increased truck business. The motor truck is doing its bit in the present world war, and the railroads have been relieved a great deal for general use by merchants for both long and short hauls.

THEATRES

LANCASTER THEATRE

Attired in new dress through the refurnishing and redecoration of its interior, and with Spring styles in the dress of its Summer closing, the Lancaster Theatre opens its regular season with a bill of photoplay features which should prove a pleasing reminder of renewed activities. The first half of the week there will be shown J. Stuart Blackton's production, "Missing," a screening of Mrs. Humphry Ward's famous story with an all star cast. This has been awarded as the greatest photoplay ever produced by the Paramount Corporation, the film with which it is known. Thursday, Friday and Saturday supporting Marion Davies in the leading role, in what will be, as an augmenting attraction, the vaudeville Mary's "Thumb." Mary's Thumb will sing in the chorus scene, and will appear in a solo specialty.

PIER PERFORMANCE

Under the auspices of the U. S. Women's War Relief, of which Boston is an enthusiastic member, the Pier Theatre with Theodosia Barrios as Hostess this week has nightly performances and seated for the season here at Commonwealth Pier on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Miss Ware has been a constant visitor at the workrooms of the U. S. Women's War Relief in Boston, spending much of her time before and after her performance in sewing for "our boys."

BOSTON THEATRE

Frank Keenan attains his season triumph in "More Trouble," which will be seen as the leading feature at the Boston Theatre next week. Mr. Keenan appears as the owner of a big iron works, and the story is based on his uncanny series of misfortunes which overtake him immediately upon the acquisition of his seemingly mild and retiring son.

With this great picture there is also a strong bill of vaudeville. Louis Hart gives one of the latest war skits. Private Louis Hart of the Stevedores Battalion, A. E. F., is at present in France. Walters & Walters, Achilles & Vesus, Eddie Healey, Sennett, Official War News and Burt & Johnston complete the bill.

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

STARS MAY BALK BIG SERIES

Dying Days of Baseball Show Spirit of Unrest Among Big League Players

By NICK FLATLEY.

Leading the league, the Red Sox are home again to make their final surge and clinch another pennant.

They have a fairly wide margin on the Cleveland Indians, and, if habit persists, will widen it quite a bit more before the curtain falls due on the Fenway to-morrow.

At home this season the Sox have been practically unbeatable. Sox pitchers have won many and sundry ball games; temporary fielders have pulled many a game out of the fire. On the Fenway lot there's been no beating the Red Sox.

In this last stand there's no reason to suppose custom will alter. The Barrow brigade has plenty of pitching. Perinsance, flattering Babe Ruth won five games out on the trails. He can be figured to win as many anywhere on the home pasture.

In addition, Barrow has Mays, Bush and Jones to work with. Under present tough conditions, no manager could ask more. No manager, it might be quoted, can boast nearly as much.

There may be a World's Series—there will be if the wishes of the owners of the leading clubs are considered—and there may not. But one way or the other, Boston seems due for one more flag.

Many of the players—the ones with real patriotic feelings—will refuse to mind after September 15, when they will win the applause of fandom, which has been sufficiently disgusted with baseball's wartime antics.

READY TO BUCK OFF.

The retiring class, unless we are miles at sea, will include most of the present Red Sox. So, too, will it comprise the majority of the Athletics.

If our sermise is correct, a title series would not have much interest. If it be incorrect, many athletes are willing to play despite governmental advice, the big clash would be more or less a joke.

The Cubs might play the Red Sox, but the team left in the race would sincerely believe the abbreviated season had wrecked their chances of winning and the Cubs, likewise, and rightly, that the contending Cheroes were sloughers.

All of which, however, doesn't alter the fact that Boston will probably clinch and, en route, watch the Sox clinch one more pennant in the dying days of a mikedon season.

DEPOT NINE HOOKS UP WITH MEAD-MORRISONS

The crack team representing the Boston Depot Quartermaster's Corps, ready to take on all comers, Mead-Morrisons or the Independent Association Baseball League. The Depot boys have to-date some of their fastest games Wednesday and Linden Town teams being the only ones to flag them.

Madden was to fling for the Army outfit, with Brooks right behind receiving. Gleason, Gilmore, McCarthy and Bond comprise a corking good infield, though Bean may succeed Bond at short's contact. Cahill, Halligan, Guarrity, Lee Mayer and Kelley are the Depot team's fine array of outfielders.

CONSOLATION HANDICAP LANDED BY ROSENTHEIL

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Ralph R. Rosenthell of Freeport, Ill., won the consolation handicap, which brought the nineteenth grand American Handicap trapshooting tournament to a close. His score was 96 out of 100 from the 17-yard mark. H. J. Pendergast of Hyndell, N. Y., with $1,650, was high money winner.

WEAFER AND HARVEY IN POINTS FOR ST. AMBROSE

The crack St. Ambrose nine, twice senior championship of the Dorchester Catholic League, was to cross bats with the Lindens of Malden on Town Field, Fields Corner, Dorchester, this afternoon. Weafer and Harvey were slated to be in the points for St. Ambrose.

BRAVES TACKLE McGRAWS IN TWIN BILL

New York, Aug. 10.—George Stallings evidently doesn't care how he spends the money of those hundred or more rich men who own the Boston Braves. Here's this lean season as good as over, and Uncle Wally is in New York, headed for the Woolly West, with his complete family, including quite a dozen boys of broilers.

The Braves and Giants were in engage in a double-header up at Brush Stadium this afternoon. What would ordinarily be a "house" of upward of 25,000 cash customers nids fair to be a sparse gathering. That's because the Joints have quit cold in their chase after the Chicago Cubs.

Fred Mitchell's warfare trounced them four out of five in the recent all-important series up on the Lake Michigan shore. Mathewson's eventual outfit, which quit long before the series ended, is not looked for taking three out of four from J. McGraw's pets. So, the baseball season is as good as over in Gotham and what's equally sad, those Yankees of Miller Huggins' have also retired from the running in the American League.

So now here the Braves dropped off to Springfield and defeated the Pirk Red Tops, 7-4. McQuillan helped win his own game by smashing out a couple of timely hits. Ray Fisher, ex-Yanker, was on the hillock for the Red Tops. The Braves say he had lots of stuff, though the doose shows they bombarded him for eleven hits.

Hadden was to fling for the Army outfit, with Brooks right behind receiving. Gleason, Gilmore, McCarthy and Bond comprise a corking good infield, though Bean may succeed Bond at short's contact. Cahill, Halligan, Guarrity, Lee Mayer and Kelley are the Depot team's fine array of outfielders.

THREE-MILE RUN TOPS SCOTCH GAMES SEPT. 2

The Order of Scottish Clans is preparing to make the 29th annual athletic and games at Caledonian Grove, West Roxbury, Labor Day, one of the banner events of the Summer season. Professionals will compete in the 120, 440 and 880 yards, one mile and three-mile runs. Cash prizes will be awarded. In the events will be the three-mile run, with $125, $75, and $35 going to the men finishing in the lengths listed.

There will also be a championship game, as well as the usual Highland fling. All profits are to be used in paying sick benefits of members and making donations to widows and orphans.

LINCOLN PARK SCENE OF BIG AMATEUR GAME

The St. Joseph's of Somerville and Converse Rubber Company team of Malden were to hook up at Lincoln Park, Somerville, this afternoon, Dunleavy, Old Point College twirler, was slated to do mound duty for St. Joseph's. Tewd Somerville High infielder, and Ed Sharkey and Crotty of St. Mary's College, Pennsylvania, were among its topliners. Sharkey or Glennon, Converse's no-hit boxman, was slated to oppose Dunleavy.

JESS WILLARD IS ON AT SALVATION ARMY SHOW

Chicago, Aug. 10.—The Salvation Army baking tournament, originally arranged for Comiskey Park, was awarded to take place this afternoon at Fort Sheridan. The switch was made when the city officials objected. Jess Willard, heavyweight champion, said he hoped he would be pitted against Jack Dempsey, Fred Fulton's conqueror. Big Jess declared he wouldn't box anybody at the show, and preferred Dempsey.

EDDIE GILL AND REIGER COLLIDE AT WORCESTER

Worcester, Aug. 10.—The Graton and Knight and Fisk Red Top teams were to meet at Boulevard Park this afternoon. Eddie Gill, Holy Cross star, was slated to twirl for the Red Tops with Reiger, New London (Eastern League) star, on the hillock

CORBETT'S CORNER

BY JAMES J. CORBETT.

A million race horses have come and gone since Salvator's time; legions of them have been whirlwinds; many have taken rank among the greatest of all time. Yet not one of them could fracture or even come close to equalling the time for the one-mile made by the mighty stallion on August 28, 1890, in old Monmouth Park.

Salvator, owned by J. R. Haggin, had accomplished marvelous feats as a two and three-year-old. There seemed to be no limit to the speed of this amazing son of Prince Charlie—Salina, and Haggin, granting the pleas of racing enthusiasts, consented to send Salvator in an attack against the mile record of 1:39¼, then held by Ravenie.

The track wasn't in any really excellent shape the day that Haggin elected to have Salvator race against time—but Haggin, rather than disappoint the thigs throng, elected to let him run.

To further handicap Salvator came the suspension of his crack jockey, Isaac Murphy, on the eve of race day and the substitution of Marty Bergen, hardly ridden him only once or twice before.

OVER HALF MILLION IN BETS

Bookmakers laid 1 to 2 against Salvator's effort to fracture the record, but even at that price the public showed its supreme faith in the strapping chestnut stallion by wagering close over a half million on his chances.

Accompanied by two pace-makers, Nauomona and Rosetie, which were to work in relays, Salvator, carrying 116 pounds, paraded past the stand and then romped to the starting line.

As Salvator broke from the barrier at the one-mile mark, Naoumona jumped away from a position ten lengths in front of the post.

Her driver shot the mare along to the limit of her speed but, fast as was her pace, Salvator's was infinitely faster.

At the quarter-mile post, which Salvator made in :22½, a great ovation for the pet went forth from the mare and in two jumps more she was beyond her, moving with mechanic, frictionless strides.

At the half-mile mark, which Salvator passed in :47½, an average of 1:35—Naoumana was a dozen lengths behind, despite her ten lengths start.

MARK STANDS 28 YEARS.

Some distance beyond the half-mile post, Rosette took up the pace, breaking away from the pacemaker as in front of the speeding whirlwind. With each jump the tiny, but wonderful Salvator pulled on him and when he shot past the three-quarter pole in 1:11½—an average of 1:35½—Rosette was only a few jumps in front.

In another stride or two Salvator caught and then passed Rosette, and then, with a stride as smooth and as fast as a machine in flight, he flashed toward the finish line.

Once—a furlong from the end—Bergen, who had been sitting motionless, applied the whip, but Salvator didn't need it. He was whirling along in record time without any urging—impelled only by his own love for running.

As Salvator came abreast of the far end of the grandstand, a mighty cheer went up for him that increased to a roll of vocal thunder as he swept across the mark.

And then there was silence—the suspense of waiting for the verdict. Timers—five of them—compared their watches, and then with a nod assented to the man at the bulletin board.

He gathered together a collection of numbers and as he assembled them to view a mighty cheer broke forth from the multitude, for they read: "1:35½."

It's a mark that has withstood the onslaughts of twenty-eight years; a record so wonderful that it may endure for all time as far as the American turf is concerned.

Two Gala Events On Tonight's Menu at Revere Saucer

A double feature bill is up for decision at the Revere cycle track tonight.

For the first time this season bike fans will have a chance to see the tandem used as a pacing machine, when Logan and Thomas meet in a special five-mile event.

In the other paced race, a team of event at thirty-five miles, behind the motors, George Wiley and Elmer Collins of Lynn, will meet Peter Drobach and Victor Linart.

With Logan and Drobach starting in the two big events, it promises a big night for South Boston, as both riders hail from the jaunty suburb district and have big followings.

The regular card of amateur and professional events will also be run off.

BOYS AT CAMP UPTON DEDICATE NEW FIELD

New York, Aug. 10.—More than 2,000 soldiers were to compete for prizes donated by the New York A. C. at the monthly track and field games at Camp Upton today. The events mark the opening of the new athletic field at the camp.

The running track is a quarter-mile cinder path and surrounds a regulation baseball diamond. The field is to be known as Upton Athletic Field.

BOWLING GREEN TEAMS HAVE STARS ON PARADE

The Boston Bowling Green Club and Fall River Lawn Bowling Green Club were to meet on Franklin Field this afternoon. The Fall River aggregation defeated the Boston outfit in a game in Fall River early in the season and the home men were confident of evening up the score. Four matches were on the program, with both clubs using all their best men.

Swimming Meet Put Over

The city of Boston swimming races at the Prespert street beach have been put over until Monday afternoon. Instructor William Mullen states that clear weather is all that is necessary to make the meet a gala one.

JOHNNY BEST IS BIG NOISE AT C. A. C. SHOW

By RINGSIDE.

Jos Currie of New Haven, Ct., repeated over Johnny Buckley of South Boston, getting Referee Larry Conley's verdict at the close of the tenth round in a tame bout, too tame, in fact, to suit the Commercial A. C. members. Only one round, the ninth, showed any spicy work.

The best bout of the evening was between Johnny Best of Scotland, and Frank Bendini, another New Haveite. Best showed some of the cleverest boxing seen at the West End club in a long time.

Johnny gave a great exhibition of ducking and evading punishment. He landed many a right hand wallop to Brindisi's body, but the little Italian was game to the core and came back strong in the ninth and tenth rounds, his good finish gaining him a draw.

Larry Conley's decision was well received, but a lot of shrewd judges thought Best was entitled to the award. Johnny was all the boxing and probably Larry gave Brindisi a little the better of it on the scoring.

Joe Flynn won from Sam Bell in the other ten-rounder. It was fairly even up to the seventh, but from then on Joe was all over the South Ender. Flynn, while he hurt no hand in the fifth round, kept up his fine exhibition.

Referee Conley stopped the affair between Larry Gray and Charley Parker in the second round, giving to the latter when things were beginning to look squally for the Chelsea entry.

* * *

Sandy Ferguson, well-known stubby Charlestown boxer, is going to try a comeback stunt again. Sandy is slated to meet Dick O'Brien for eight rounds at Charleston, W. Va., a week from tonight. At McCoy of Brooklyn, former middleweight champion, is now looking after Sandy's interests.

* * *

The government emissioner of Bath, Me., and surrounding towns are to see some swell bouts in training quarters. The promoters don't get crossed up. Shaver O'Brien of South Boston, and Tommy Burns of Brooklyn, are to appear in the feature bout at a show to be staged next Saturday night.

Burns has been performing in great style, three of his last four bouts ending in his favor via the well-known knock route.

Jack Britton and Joe Eagan are scheduled to furnish the feature bout at the Labor Day show. They are to go on in the open at Kelley's Field.

* * *

JACK DEMPSEY is said to have been matched with Sir Jackson Hill with Billy Miske at Philadelphia, August 29.

DEMPSEY is being eagerly sought by the different organizations running boxing shows, and Jack shows the right spirit, giving his services to any of them. Last year the Salvation Army show in Chicago was the beneficiary of Jack's services, and K. of C. show in Brooklyn next Friday night.

* * *

TED (KID) LEWIS has signed to meet Mike Mole at Jersey City, Thursday night. Nothing is said about the referee, but Lewis insists on seeing Harry Ertle, Jersey Boxing Commissioner.

CLAY TURNER IS WELL LACED BY HARRY GREB

Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 10.—Harry Greb had all the better of the batting in his eight-round bout with Clay Turner, Indiana fighter. Greb employed his left hook to good advantage.

Turner excelled in only one round, the fourth, but Greb came back strong in the next chapter. More than 3,000 fans witnessed the bout, which was held at the Armory A. A. open-air arena.

FRANKIE BRITT KAYOS ERNE IN FIRST ROUND

Lowell, Aug. 10.—Frankie (Young) Britt, New Bedford 130-pounder, knocked out Frankie Erne of Lancaster, Pa., in the first round of a carded twelve-round bout at the Crescent A. C. A left-hander to the stomach turned the trick.

BIG UPHEAVAL IN SPORT AFTER WAR IS WON

Fullerton Looks for Municipal Baseball, with Y. M. C. A. and K. of C. in All Powerful

By HUGH S. FULERTON.

"After the war we are going to have a readjustment in all lines of sport. The National Commission will not be able to control or govern baseball, neither will the colleges nor the A. A. U. be able to handle their separate fields.

"I look for the Y. M. C. A. and K. of C. to take the lead in governing all amateur sports. I expect that each city will place amateur baseball on the basis of municipal ownership, and there is a chance that the professional and semi-pro business may be placed under municipal control.

Government ownership of the major leagues is not an impossibility, unless municipal ownership and the zoning of players be substituted for it.

The degree to which baseball has spread over the world, as well as its irresistibility, as an American, were revealed at a game played recently in one of the suburbs of London. There was a big East Indian from somewhere in Upper Hurmuh, who had learned the game while he was making all the American boys jealous by his powerful hitting.

YOU KNOW ME, AL!

He had been crashing the ball against the outfield barriers and one of the Yanks noticed that each time before he came to bat the Indian behaved in a strange manner, bowing his head and crossing his arms over his chest.

After the Indian had made his third hit the Yank decided that he ought to learn the system. He waited until the dusky player was about to bat, then crept up behind him. The Indian crossed his hands, bowed his head and said:

"Also I am great that I make a hit."

He went to bat, swung at the first ball and hit over the fence. The Yank decided that he was right. He grasped his bat, bowed his head and said:

"You know me, Al!"

COBB-CRAWFORD FEUD.

Ty Cobb's long time feud with Sam Crawford really was baseless and I can't see how anybody admired the other and never would admit it. The feud started early in Cobb's career and was fanned by them the great star of the team, remarked to Ty after a play:

"I wouldn't have done that if I were you."

"Huh! I was as rotten a ball player as you are, I wouldn't, either," Cobb retorted, and it is recorded that they never exchanged another word.

On another day Sam was on the third base and Ty was batting when the batter dropped a short hit into the outfield. Sam, fearing the ball would be caught out there, started for home, seeing that it was falling safe, sprinted around third, got about half way home and started sliding, of course, Sam had gone home. He was wild when he got up and said:

"I figured that fat slob could score from third if I could from second."

But what anyone criticized Sam, Ty Cobb always had a big word to say about how great he was as a hitter. He received all sorts of criticism.

ROSA WATTS WINS AFTER HOT BRUSH WITH BALEM

Woonsocket, R. I., Aug. 10.—The final session at the Fair grounds was featured by the pacing event, which had a hard time defeating Balem in the 2:24 trotting stake. The event went to heats.

Millard D. annexed the 2:15 pace, it took six heats before the decision was reached with Billy Crosier driving in place of Myers. Lady Amiss won the 2:21 pace in an ordinary field in straight heats.

SINGLE G. BEATS MISS HARRIS M. TWO STRAIGHT

Cleveland, Aug. 10.—Single G., driven by Trop Geers, placed the $2,000 free-for-all pace to her credit in straight heats. Miss Harris M. finished second in both heats. Single G.'s time was 2:01¼ and 2:02. Other events:

2:11 trot, sold J. (Hedrick), 2:06 pace, sonth Bend (ind.) (Cooper), 2:22 trot, Tilford (Lodman).

Host of Old Favorites to Play in Sunday's Big Naval Game

With clear weather prevailing tomorrow, Braves Field, massive as it is, should be packed to the last. It is Business Manager Hapgood's forecast that the spacious grounds will probably establish a new attendance mark.

The big game on the double bill is Rumkin Island vs. Newport. It's for the championship of the First and Second Naval Districts and a host of former big leaguers are carded to appear in the rival lineups.

Dana Fillingim, Walter Reig, Joe Kelly, Ray Powell, Fred Baumgardner, Ed Spencer and Hughie Canavan, all ex-Braves; Chick Shorten and Jimmy Walsh, two old Red Sox heroes; Tom's Schultz, University of Pennsylvania's slab wizard a few years back, and Carroll, one of Holy Cross' former stars, are among the topliners who will take part in the game.

The preliminary contest will be between the First Naval District Headquarters' team and the boys from the U. S. S. Nebraska. The Rumkin Island Band—there's none better—is to render an hour's concert in advance of the curtain-raiser.

As usual, no admission fee will be charged, nor will any collection be taken up. First game at 2 o'clock.

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Ralph Brady of Syracuse knocked out Young Schoell of Buffalo in the third round of a carded ten-round battle.

HEYDLER NEW NATIONAL LEADER

Tener's Resignation Accepted and Secretary-Treasurer Will Conduct League Affairs

New York, Aug. 10.—The resignation of John Kinley Tener, former Governor of Pennsylvania, as president of the National Baseball League has been accepted by a special committee of club presidents authorized to take such action.

A letter to Tener, signed by Harry N. Hampstead of New York, William F. Baker of Philadelphia, and C. H. Ebbets of Brooklyn, members of the committee, wished the retiring league leader success in his venture in the highway construction business, and termed his withdrawal "a heavy loss" in the baseball organization.

Until the annual meeting in December, the league's affairs will be conducted by John A. Heydler, secretary and treasurer.

The letter follows:

"In compliance with your letter of August 6, submitted to all National League presidents, this committee has been authorized to accept your resignation to take effect at once.

"In taking this action we feel that we have established a heavy loss, and in accepting your resignation we wish to assure you of our highest esteem and give you our very best wishes in your new field of endeavor.

"We realized, as you did, that it was impossible for you to [illegible] fully conduct both of these large enterprises, as their character is so entirely different and requires so much detail."

Westy Hogan Revels in Mud and Loses Fleet Field in Handicap Event at Saratoga

By ED CURLEY.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Westy Hogan came along and ruined the feelings of many when he romped home in the Glens Falls Handicap, the first jaunt he's behind Westy was Naturalist, and that's where the sadness crept in, for Naturalist was probably considered the best thing of the day.

Westy showed the soft going or not, he was a boss; he breezed to the front early and stayed there. Naturalist was his class Westy, but Lawdy, Westy was a runnin' fool and he wasn't goin' to be caught by Naturalist or any other boss.

A lot of aqua transformed the lightening fast course into a winding path of mud and water. This accentuated the speed scratching and upset in the form of the horses.

Fleet Field, Thistledom won is a caster. Belario, the favorite, couldn't negotiate the sloppy track and ran poorly.

There was quite an upset for the boys in the third, they centered their affection on little Jurie Donovan. Just as he appeared to be winning Fotograph came by right from the background and hove along enough to be in the foreground at the wire.

In the fifth event the agony was reduced into the players good and plenty. All they could see was Harwood II., but all they could see of Harwood II. at the finish was the rear in third place. N. K. Real just took the track and ran away with the purse.

"WHERE did you and Johnny come across each other?"

"Oh, we've been discussing a little man's business dear. There has been an idea in the back of Johnny's head for a long time that he'd like to finish his college education, and he and I have been talking that over. I said we'd be friends some day. Well, dear, we are already—friends, brothers." He smiled tenderly.

No words of Conroy or Dickson or Dolly passed Twombly's lips. His own secrets he would always tell his little sweetheart, but this silence which he meant to hold about Johnny's secret could not fail to weld the bond between him and Cecilia's brother.

Card in Pocket

"Did you ever find out anything about that woman whose card I found in Johnny's pocket, that Della Vernon?" asked Cecilia.

"I found out all about her and so did the boy, little sweetheart. He and I are going to be good chums. Chums keep each others secrets. * * * You and I have ourselves to talk about. Come over to that little nook of ours behind the trellis. There's a certain date we haven't set yet, and I think it ought to be about tomorrow, though if you persuade very earnestly I might wait till day after tomorrow."

"Harry, whatever are you talking about?"

"My wedding! * * * Oh, yes, Miss Madden, it's to be your wedding, too. Shall we say tomorrow?"

"Harry Twombly, you know perfectly well I can't be ready for a month, October, I should think, next Fall."

Cecilia was suddenly shy, agitated, a prey to that strange, nervous indecision with which terrified womankind often faces its greatest moment.

Alone in the rose arbor, Twombly laid his hands upon her shoulders and faced her. His eyes were tender and pleading, but there was strength in them and a demand—a demand of a man for his mate.

"Little Cecilia, I've been waiting for you ever since you were sixteen. I don't want to wait any longer. I want my wife. I want her now, tonight. Don't you want to belong to me, too, dear?"

Suddenly Cecilia looked into her own heart and knew that she did want to belong to this man—that what she wanted most of all in the world was just to be his wife.

"Whenever you say, dear," she whispered shyly. "Will you come over to mother's little chapel? I want to take her some of her pink roses. I'm very happy tonight. I want her to share it—to know she's not forgotten." * * *

In the red velvet parlor Johnny Madden knelt at the side of the couch waiting for his father to awake. At last the man opened his eyes and saw the boy waiting by his side. Jerry blinked nervously and got to his feet.

Johnny Relents

"I'll get on me shoes and collar immejite, Johnny. I'm sorry I tuk them off again. It is hot and I was tired. Celie said I could get in a little nap before dinner. I didn't go for to make you mad, my boy. I'd never have done it if I'd known you was going to find me."

"Father—oh, father, you're killing me. All of a sudden you make me see myself for the selfish young brute I am. It's a wonder you don't hate me. I'll be different, father. I'll be different. Am I your boy yet in spite of the way I've acted?" Johnny was on his knees, clutching his father's hand, sobbing like a child.

Jerry started in puzzled wonder. Whatever had gotten into Johnny he could not quite see, but with the Irishman's ready adaptability to circumstances he accepted this remarkable situation. He even ventured to smile a bit watefully, half in terror lest he wake and his dream fade.

"Are you my boy, you're asking? Now, wherever do you think you and your sister Celie got them blue eyes of yours? From my Mary the red curls, but them blue eyes I'd have you know is Madden, not O'Brien. Sure you're my boy, Johnny, though a better man than your father."

"Oh, I'm not half as good a man, Father, I've been more kinds of a young fool than you know. Do you think you can forgive me for all you do know and all you don't?"

"Bin sowin' any wild oats, Johnny?" asked Jeremiah shrewdly, laying his hand tenderly on the gold of the hair so like his Mary's.

"Say, dad, you're a keen one all right. I came pretty near sowing a bumper crop."

To Be Continued

That Serge Frock

YOU CAN REMODEL IT IF YOU WILL

IF you go away to the shore this Summer you will need one serge frock for cool or stormy days. It is very disagreeable to be caught in the damp fog in a thin organdie dress and more especially if you always make sure to tuck one warm dress into her trunk for just such emergencies. But if your serge frock is a bit too old-fashioned to wear, why not remodel it into more up-to-date shape? This can be done very economically at home with little trouble.

If the dress has a full skirt (like last year's fashion) it must first be made narrow. Fit the seams in carefully until the skirt measures about a yard and a half to two yards at the bottom. Then inset two bands of dark blue taffeta into the skirt, alternating them with bands of the serge. It is best to baste the taffeta bands on the skirt first and then cut out the material underneath.

A pretty girdle of crushed silk should be used at the top of the skirt, with sash ends hanging on the left side. A bit of embroidery done in turkey red would be smart on the sash ends, although this could be omitted by women of conservative taste.

The waist of the frock should also be made over. If it opens down the back stitch it together and finish the fold with a black braid and buttons. The front might then be cut open to the waist line and filled in with a vest of the silk.

A long roll collar of the taffeta completes the blouse. Embroidered motifs done in the turkey red might be worked on the silk vest to brighten it a bit.

Another smart way to remodel the blue serge frock is by adding a pleated tunic of taffeta and organdie collar and cuffs. This is a smart model for a slim girl.

First make the serge skirt quite narrow by taking in the side seams and adjusting the length. Then add the pleated tunic of blue taffeta, having it reach about to the knees. The pleating may be done at any pleating establishment for a small sum.

To remake the waist, stitch the front together (if opened). This seam can be covered by a bit of embroidery or by a line silk string tie. Remove the collar and cut the neck round. Carefully bind it so that it doesn't pull out of shape. Finish the neck with a pleated ruffle of white organdie, and also the sleeves with turnback cuffs.

Collar and cuff sets of this kind may be purchased ready-to-wear for fifty cents, and are very attractive. A girdle of silk, crushed at the waist with no sash ends, is decidedly smart on a frock of this kind.

Both of these models are easy to copy and will change an old serge frock into a very pretty, stylish, dress for cool days at the shore or in town.

The Sporting Instinct.

An orator at a street corner told his audience of the blessedness of humanity, and while he was speaking two little dogs strayed into the middle of the crowd. "Now," said the orator, "here we have an objection-lesson. Let me put you into your hands." He turned to a sturdy youth. "My little man, if these two animals were to fight, what would you do?" An impressive silence settled upon the crowd while the unwashed youth pondered the problem. "Well, guvnor," he said at length, "I think I'd bet on the black 'un!"

ANECDOTES OF THE FAMOUS

Sir Washington Ranger the Salvation Army's blind solicitor, recently knighted, is a remarkable man. He is now in his seventy-first year and has been blind since he was fifteen. For over fifty years he has worked hard and voluntarily for all causes connected with the welfare of the blind, and is the only blind man to take the D. C. L. (Doctor of Civil Law) degree at Oxford. Sir Washington, who is a hearty co-operator with Sir Arthur Pearson in the magnificent work at St. Dunstan's, Regent's Park, the "House of Hope" for blinded soldiers and sailors, recently told me that when walking by himself he rarely loses his way. If, however, he finds himself doubtful of his whereabouts he walks straight on until he hears some one approaching. Then, with amazing intuition, he can tell whether the approaching stranger is to be trusted or not.

Lady Randolph Churchill's marriage (her third) recalls an amusing story about one who was just plain Miss Jennie Jerome of New York.

Like her father, she was a keen politician, and on one occasion she delivered a rousing speech in favor of General Grant, then standing for the Presidency for the second time.

When she had finished speaking some enthusiast in the audience shouted:

"Miss Jerome for ever!"

She stopped forward.

"Sir, I thank you," she said, "but I do not wish to be Miss Jerome for ever."

Sergeant Jimmy Wilde, flyweight boxing champion of the world, tells this war story:

"A army chaplain came across a boxing—column with a wagon store fast.

"Sir, I see you're in difficulties," he said. "Can I be of any assistance?"

"Yes, sir," exclaimed one of the drivers, "by making yourself scarce. You see, we can't very well get to the horses what they'd understand while you're about."

"I CERTAINLY am not," she admitted with unflattering promptness.

"Then why did you pretend to be?" he demanded.

"For reasons that are good and sufficient to myself," she told him, "but which I am under no obligations to explain."

"Is that so?" he sneered. "Well, you don't need to make any explanations. I know who sent you here."

"How long have you known?" she asked.

There was no curiosity in her manner. She behaved as if his reply concerned her very little.

"I suspected you from the first," Clifford Chapin burst forth. "But I knew today, as soon as I saw that letter, who sent you here."

"I noticed that you were studying the address with much interest," she observed coolly. "I noticed it particularly, because the men in my class do not do that kind of thing. It is not considered good form."

She was intensely angry, yet her tone was so calm that it exasperated the listener.

"The men in your class!" he snorted. "Perhaps you think I am not aware who they are."

"You could hardly have met them," she reminded him.

Upset and indignant as she was she must remain on the scene until the son of the house took his departure.

John Butler arose at her approach and pushed forward a chair for her.

"Sit down," he said gently. "We are glad you returned so soon."

She could scarcely speak as she listened eagerly to his kind words and refined intonations. How pleasant it was to be in his protecting presence!

To Be Continued.

Her reminder checked the torrent of words that came to his lips.

Did the girl suspect his father's scheme? Was she warning him that it would be unsafe just now to cross Wade? Did Wade have more money than Amos fancied? If not, how could he pay this girl's expenses? What was the game anyway?

"I will now return to the house," Elizabeth said. "But" slowly, "since you know the truth, I would suggest that you be careful how you use it. You may have Dr. Wade to reckon with—and when he pays a score he pays it thoroughly. My disinterested advice to you would be to keep your lips tightly closed until you understand just how matters are. More depends upon it than you realize."

Turning sharply, she went on up the walk alone.

She Was Angry

She was so angry that she could not trust her voice to say more. This cad had had the audacity to intimate that her brother had no right to send her out here to a farm that he owned. She was also perplexed at Clifford's attitude. How dared he resent her brother's action?

It was all too much of a puzzle for her to understand. This fellow would soon be gone. He would hardly have an opportunity to speak alone with Butler within the next hour or two before his departure for Midland. She must try to arrange that no opportunity offered itself for a tete-a-tete between the men.

Clifford Thinks Again

"Well," he spluttered, "I know who one of them is—and that's the one who sent you here. Douglas Wade sent you and pays your expenses."

"That is his privilege," she rejoined.

Her unruffled demeanor took away his breath.

"You admit it!" he exclaimed. "You have the shamelessness to acknowledge it!"

"I see no shamelessness in it," she affirmed. "This farm belongs to Dr. Wade, please remember."

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

He Happens to Be Married

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Will you please be kind enough to advise me in the following matter?

I have been married almost a year. Now, there is a foolish young girl near my husband's place of business who has repeatedly requested friends of his to introduce him to her. These friends in question have told me about it each time, but they did not tell the girl that he was married, only saying that he did not care to meet girls near his work.

She is making every effort to meet him, and I am really very unhappy over it. Therefore, would it be undignified of me to stop this girl and tell her that the man she desires to become acquainted with is my husband?

Thanking you in advance for a kind answer, I am,

ANXIOUS.

I THINK it would be more dignified if the friends you mention would tell the young lady that the man she is making such heroic efforts to meet is married.

Indeed, I cannot imagine why they did not do so the first place, and save every one concerned trouble.

Don't Run After Him

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am nineteen and for three years have been in love with a young man two years my senior. He is good looking, well educated and has a fairly good position. He knows that I love him. We used to go together quite a bit, but he seldom makes an appointment now. Often I call him up or write to him (which I do very often). I think that he cares for me and doesn't want to show it.

How can I test him?

L.

This young man is not unlike thousands of others. When he sees that he can have your devotion without effort he begins to tire of it. You should treat him merely as a good friend, and if he is in love with you he will say so. If he is not, you should try to consider him as a friend.

A Thrilling Story of an American Girl and German Intrigue in This Country

What Has Gone Before

A beautiful American girl, Pamela Van Teyl, goes to a London restaurant with Captain Holderness and John Lutchester, where they meet a Mr. Fischer, an American, and Molly Holderness, and later young Captain Graham, nicknamed Sandy, who tells them all in loud tones of a wonderful discovery he has made in explosives. The other men hush him up and he goes upstairs to lay aside his hat. He fails to reappear, nor can any trace be found of him. Hassan, one of the servants in the restaurant, rouses the suspicion of Pamela, as do the actions of the Negro band leader. She gains the key to the chapel where she suspects Graham to be confined.

Now Go On With the Story

PAMELA laughed gaily.

"Is that necessary?"

Necessary or not, it's the truth," he assured her. "I am a man of quick impressions and lasting ones." But we've never met except on a steamer," Pamela reminded him.

"I know it's the fashion," Mr. Fischer said, "to turn up one's nose at steamer acquaintances. It isn't like that with me. You see, I didn't have as much opportunity of meeting folk as some others, perhaps. The most interesting people I've known socially I've met on steamers. I sat at your table, side by side with you, Miss Van Teyl, for over a few months ago. I guess I'll remember those seven days as long as I live."

Pamela turned her head and looked at him. The faintly derisive smile died away from her lips. The man was in earnest. A certain curiosity stole into her eyes as the seconds passed. She studied his hard, strong face, with its great jaw and prominent forehead; the mouth, a little too full, and belying the rest of his physiognomy, yet with its own peculiar strength. He had taken off his spectacles, and it seemed to her that the cold, flinty eyes had caught for a moment some touch of the softer blue of the sea or the sky. Seated, he long seemed the awkwardness of his too great and ill-carried height. It seemed to her that he was at least a person to be reckoned with, either in friendship or enmity.

"Are you an American born, Mr. Fischer," she asked him.

He shook his head.

"I was born at Offenbach," he told her, "near Frankfurt. My father brought me out to America when I was eleven years old."

"You must find the present condition of things a little trying for you," she observed.

Oscar Fischer put on his glasses again. He did not answer for several moments.

"That opens up a subject, Miss Van Teyl," he said, "which some day I should like to discuss with you."

"Why not now?" she invited. "I feel much more inclined for conversation than reading."

"Tell me, then, to begin with," he asked thoughtfully, "on which side are your sympathies?"

"I try to do my duty as an American citizen," she replied promptly, "and that is to have no sympathies. Our dear country has set the world an example of what neutrality should be. I think it is the duty of us Americans to try and bring ourselves into exactly the same line of feeling."

He changed his position a little uneasily. His attitude became less of a sprawl. His eyes were fixed upon her face.

"I fear," he said, "that we are going to begin by a disagreement. I do not consider that America has realized in the least the duties of a neutral nation."

"You must explain that at once, if you please, before we go any further," Pamela insisted.

"Is this neutrality?" Fischer demanded, his rather harsh voice almost raucous now with a touch of real feeling. "America ships daily millions of dollars' worth of those things that make war possible, to France, to Italy, above all to England. She keeps them supplied with ammunition, clothing, scientific instruments, food—a dozen things which make war easier. To Germany she sends nothing. Is that neutrality?"

Market Is Open

"But America is perfectly willing to deal in the same way with Germany," Pamela pointed out. "German agents can come and place orders and take away what they want. The market is as much open to her as to the allies."

Fischer was sitting bolt upright in his chair now. There was a little spot of color in his cheeks and his eyes flashed behind his spectacles. He struck the side of the chair. He was very angry.

"That is insulting!" he declared. "It is perfectly well-known that Germany is not in a position to fetch munitions from America. Therefore, I say that there is no neutrality in supplying one side in the war with goods which the other is unable to procure."

"Then you place upon America the onus of Germany's naval inferiority," Pamela remarked drily.

St. Vitus Dance

ITS CAUSES AND ITS CURE

By Brice Belden, M. D.

SO common is St. Vitus dance among children, particularly girls, that most people are familiar with the purposeless movements that reveal the affection.

St. Vitus' dance, or chorea, is most frequently seen from the fifth to the twelfth year of life. It is frequently a sequel to rheumatism or tonsillitis, or both. The chain of events is often as follows: First there is an attack of tonsillitis; some time after this the child has rheumatism in either mild, moderate or severe form; then St. Vitus' dance supervenes.

This explains the frequency with which heart murmurs are noted in the course of chorea, the heart murmurs being caused by rheumatic inflammation of the lining of the heart (endocarditis).

It is believed by some physicians that after the germ of rheumatism invades the body, usually by way of the tonsil, the poison known as toxin, which is thrown off by the germ in the course of its growth and activity, irritates the surface of the brain in that region known as the Rolandic area, wherein are the centres which govern many of our movements.

After infection, the first symptoms are awkwardness and fidgetting. Nervousness, bad temper and a tendency to cry on slight provocation are noticeable. Then the face begins to twitch and later the body. When the child sleeps the movements cease.

In severe cases, in which the underlying cause has been intensified by severe fright, excitement or excessive school work, there may be inability to dress or take food, with disturbances of sleep and speech. So marked are the movements at times that the child has to be fastened in bed and artificially fed.

There is no fever in St. Vitus' dance unless there is active rheumatism or heart inflammation. Anemia soon develops.

St. Vitus' dance lasts from four weeks to several months. The average case recovers in ten weeks. This disease is never fatal, but relapses are common.

In the mild cases withdrawal from school and rest in bed are the proper steps to take. The room must be well ventilated. No excitement or effort must be permitted. At first the diet should consist exclusively of milk, followed later by cereals, vegetables and eggs.

In the severe cases special measures are required on the part of the physician. It may be necessary to combat the rheumatic element actively. Certain drugs, skillfully given, relieve the most distressing symptoms.

School must be given up until recovery is complete. Convalescence will progress best in some place away from the big city. Daily bathing and generous feeding are advisable in the later stages. Chronically diseased tonsils should be removed.

WATER CARNIVAL OF INTEREST TO MANY

Fill Blanks, Girls, and Join in Big Swimming Race

Entry for Boston AMERICAN Girls' Championship Swimming Race:

NAME .....

AGE .....

ADDRESS .....

.....

.....

Credited with being one of the best and prettiest swimming events of the country, the fourteenth annual water carnival of the Boston AMERICAN to be held in the Charles River Basin Saturday afternoon, August 24, will prove a source of pleasure and enjoyment to the thousands of spectators who have made up their mind to attend and watch the antics, flounderings and grimaces of the busy of pretty mermaids scheduled to take part in the great race.

The AMERICAN invites everybody to be its guest on that day and enjoy themselves. The basin is an ideal place for a day's outing. The broad esplanade that lines the basin on the Boston side and the Harvard bridge which spans the water and connects Boston with Cambridge, form excellent places from which to watch the entire race. These vantage points will accommodate thousands of spectators. There is no danger of people being overcome from crowding, for there is plenty of pure ozone of the reviving kind which is free from coal dust and the like.

The great race covers one and one-half miles and 200 feet, and is sanctioned by the New England Amateur Athletic Association. It will start at 2:15 o'clock. While the race is under way there will be some fancy diving from the Metropolitan float, near the Union Boat Club house, from which the participants in the race will start and finish. The winner of the race will be adjudged champion of New England. In addition each of the first five winners will receive a handsome gift. All others who finish will be awarded a medal.

SEND POSTAL TO RED CROSS IF TAKEN

That's the First Thing to Do if the Germans Make You a Captive

"If unluckily enough to get captured, send your first prison card—postal to the American Red Cross, Berne, Switzerland."

This, in substance, is the advice which the War Department is having officers give the men of the American Expeditionary Forces before they go to the front.

By sending this postcard to the Bureau of Prisoners' Relief, American Red Cross, Berne, Switzerland, captured men set in motion the machinery by means of which their families will be notified as promptly as possible.

And it also enables the American Red Cross to begin shipments of twenty pounds of food every week, clothing, tobacco, toilet articles and other comforts needed by the prisoner.

Awaiting the arrival of such cards, or other reliable evidence that an American is prisoner in a camp in Germany, the Red Cross has at Berne, Geneva and Copenhagen quantities of food and clothing which it sends as agent of the Army or Navy for relief of captured men.

The Red Cross also has supplies of its own for the care of captured civilians and comforts and luxuries which it furnishes captured soldiers.

GERMAN WHO HONORS KAISER IS ARRESTED

Bellmore, L. I., Aug. 10.—Military intelligence officers who raided the home of Walter Peterman found a picture of the Kaiser on the wall, surrounded by German flags. The American flag was on another wall turned upside down. A picture of Peterman in the uniform of a German naval officer was also found. Peterman was arrested charged with making seditious remarks.

COOMBS RECOMMENDED FOR INSTRUCTION HEAD

Worcester, Aug. 10.—Lottie H. Buckley, chairman of the Worcester draft organization, has suggested to local draft officials that Professor Z. W. Coombs of Worcester Polytechnic Institute be appointed head of an instruction class for Class 1 registrants of Worcester. Other draft officials heartily indorse the suggestion.

FITCHBURG DOCTOR IS APPOINTED A CAPTAIN

Fitchburg, Aug. 10.—Dr. George A. Griesemaer of this city has been appointed captain in the Medical Reserve Corps and has been ordered into active service at Camp Greenleaf, Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

ARMY AND NAVY AMERICAN

DEMOCRACY BOSTON, SATURDAY, AUGUST 10, 1918. LIBERTY

3 MORE GIVEN RANK OF MAJOR AT DEVENS

Captains Smart, Palmer and Bartlett Promoted and Assigned to New Division

Camp Devens, Ayer, Aug. 10.—Captains Alexander Smart, Daniel A. Palmer and Hartley W. Bartlett have been commissioned majors for the new Twelfth Division. The appointments of these three men make a total of seven that have been elevated to the rank of major in two days.

Major Smart has seen twenty-three years' service, being attached most of the time to the Fourth Cavalry. He is a veteran of the Geronimo campaign in Mexico in 1885, and was at one time an instructor at the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

Major Palmer hails from Boston. He was formerly a member of the First Corps Cadets.

Major Bartlett is a Worcester lawyer.

Major Philip S. Sears of the Department of the Northeast has arrived here to take up his duties as adjutant of camp headquarters. Major Barratt O'Hara, former lieutenant-governor of Illinois, and assistant judge-advocate of the division, has been appointed judge advocate.

Lieutenant-Colonel T. B. Seigle and W. C. McDaniel have started organization of the 23d and 24th infantry brigades for the new division.

Eighty-nine draftees from Lynn and thirteen from Charlestown have arrived in camp.

William Hadley, colored, of Jacksonville, Fla., who has five fingers and a thumb on each hand, has been accepted for limited service.

The 73d Regiment rifles have been received, but will not be distributed until the men become more proficient in drilling.

Forty-four enlisted men from Fort Adams, R. I., and five from Fort Kinan Allen, Vt., have been transferred to the development battalion.

Greater Boston boys who are to serve with the July draft contingents will be given their first opportunity to visit home tomorrow. They have just been released from quarantine.

Gets a Commission

Worcester, Aug. 10.—Charles G. Lidstrom, only son of Mrs. Anna C. Lidstrom of No. 59 Gates street, has been commissioned a first lieutenant in the United States Engineering Corps following examinations successfully passed in New York.

EDITORIAL

Stop kicking about little things, boys of the Army and Navy.

The only place for a kicker in the military forces is between the traces of an Army transport wagon, and even there he is not of much use.

One of the remarkable features of the assembling of hundreds of thousands of men from civilian life into the Army and Navy has been the lack of friction with which the boys have left their homes, friends, and the ordinary duties and habits of life to take up their new work.

But there have been a few kickers.

The kicks have been mainly about little things—the fit of a hat perhaps, or a boy writes home that he does not like his food. And the solicitous homefolk very likely begin to think that Uncle Sam is starving his boys. Which is not true.

Get out of the habit of kicking over the little things.

YANKEE AIRMEN WANT A GOOD NICKNAME

What is your suggestion for the best nickname for the Yankee airmen in France?

Various names have been suggested, but none of them to date suit the men-birds. "Devil Bird" is one of these. It was doubtless suggested by the term "Devil Dog," which the Germans have given to the marines on account of their fighting qualities.

Since the announcement from Paris appearing recently in the Boston AMERICAN that the American aviators have called for suggestions as to the best name, the postmen have been busy bringing in mail.

Each letter contains the writer's idea as to what the name ought to be. It must have some of the elements of popularity and it must be one that sticks, or the misery.

"THUNDER BOLTS."

"AMERICAN SKYSCRAPERS"—Miss C. Marsh, No. 34 Centre street, Brookline.

"HUN-DREADS"—James Brown of No. 19 Woodward avenue, Quincy.

"U. S. B.'s," or UNITED STATES BIRDMEN—A. J. Johnson.

Send your suggestion to the Name Editor, Boston AMERICAN.

RADIO MEN KEEN TO ARRANGE TITLE SWIM

Would Like to Make Match with Eastchester Bay Race Winner

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

U. S. Naval Radio School at Cambridge, August 10.—The swimmers of the school were deeply interested in the aquatic event that was held today under the auspices of the National Amateur Athletic Union at Eastchester Bay, N. Y., for the sailors of the Receiving Ship at Pelham Bay.

The championship at one-half mile was decided, and the Radio boys are hoping that there will be an opportunity for some of the crack swimmers of the school to have a chance to try conditions with the winner either on the Charles River or at Pelham Bay.

The members of the Radio School Band would like to see a competition between all of the bands of the First Naval District, to determine which is the best, in a musical festival to be held in one of the halls of Boston or Cambridge.

A number of the band men are now taking instruction in the school for band musicians of the army and navy, that has been established at the Conservatory of Music in Boston under the direction of Mr. Stanislao Gallo, a band leader of long experience.

A Cambridge mother, Mrs. Reuel Sanford, No. 243 Sidney street, writes to the AMERICAN:

Please add to the names of the boys serving their country that of Samuel R. Sanford of the 101st Regiment in France, and that of Robert T. Sanford, a Radio man, now at Delmar, N. J. They were all that I had but I am proud that they are doing their bit for their country.

Here is the way in which Henry McDonald, a Radio boy, voices his emotions on leaving historic Harvard Memorial Hall as a dining room for the new men quarters on Oxford street:

Farewell chow-line, long and snaky,
Creeping slowly into "Mem."
Not with mournful voice and shaky
Do I bid farewell to them—
To the hungry "gobs" so weary
Tired of waiting for their chow—
But with gladsome song and cheery
For I'm going to leave you now.

PETERS WANTS WAR HOSPITAL IN BOSTON

Offers Baker Use of West Roxbury Buildings for New England Wounded

Use of the west dependents of the Boston City Hospital for New England wounded soldiers returning from France has been offered to the War Department by Mayor Peters. The mayor also urged that the government accept the land adjacent to the hospital for the building of its New England hospital for sick, wounded and convalescing men.

Mayor Peters has heard that the government is planning to erect such a hospital for New England men at Plattsburg, N. Y. In his letter he asserted that this would make it difficult for the friends and relatives to visit the men, and that the climate of Plattsburg is not suitable. The letter in part reads:

"The unoccupied west department of the Boston City Hospital, located in West Roxbury, and just completed, but not yet occupied, is herewith offered to the United States government. It was the original intention of the trustees of the Boston City Hospital to use this new group of buildings for the accomodation of children.

"On this basis, the group of buildings which are located in a neutral and restful section of the city, and easily in the country, would accommodate approximately 185 patients, but I am informed that the original plans could readily be changed so that there would be room for between 200 and 400 patients. The trustees of the City Hospital are agreeable to the department in question passing completely under control of the government, which I understand is the only basis on which you accept such offers."

LAST OF STATE GUARD UNITS AT FRAMINGHAM

Camp Augustus Gardner, Framingham, Aug. 10.—The 13th and 29th Infantry, Massachusetts State Guard, have begun a five-days tour of duty here. They are the last of the State Guard units to occupy Camp Gardner this year. The 13th Infantry is commanded by Colonel Louis A. Frothingham and is made up of companies from Middlesex, Worcester and Norfolk Counties. Colonel W. S. Warriner is in command of the 29th, which includes units from Springfield and other cities and towns in the western part of the State.

Has Husband Advanced in Draft

Brockton, Aug. 10.—Frederick C. Roberts, a shoe worker out on strike, has been jumped from Class Forty to Class One in the draft at the request of his wife, who had him in court charged on two counts with non-support.

Burlington, Vt., Flier Brings Down Two German Planes

With the American Army in France, Aug. 10.—Two German airplanes were brought down by a youngster from Burlington, Vt., and two others by a youth from Ohio. The latter, telling of the exploit, said:

"Our flight leader deserves a lot of credit. He took a chance to get a machine, but he preferred to protect our fellows and preserve team work.

"I was being chased by a fleeman with speed to get on my tail. There was a lively duel, in which I floored him. Looking down, I saw another German plover one of my comrades, who followed him down a hundred feet to the ground. I saw him crash. The Germans in the trenches then began peppering me with their machine guns, but only one bullet hit my machine, near the seat."

A stocky lad with blue eyes, who hails from Waukesha, Wis., downed the latest German machine on the American sector of the British front.

LAWRENCE FLIER NEAR DEATH IN AIR PLUNGE

Lawrence, Aug. 10.—Lieutenant Alexander Bruce of this city, while flying over Paris with a group of other airmen, defenders of the French capital, was hauled to the ground from a considerable height and miraculously escaped death. His injuries are not serious. It was learned by his father, David Bruce, former mayor of this city and Railway Bureau, supposed to have been made upon the machine, were not properly performed, it was said, and young Bruce went into the air believing in the safety of his craft. He has since been transferred to the fighting front.

DRAFTSMEN WANTED IN ORDNANCE WORK

C. A. Sigendorph, special representative of the Ordnance Department, Boston, has been advised that Lieutenant C. H. Fiske of the engineering Bureau, Ordnance Department, Washington, will be at Room 109 State House, next Tuesday morning, to interview mechanical draftsmen, and offer immediate appointments in the Engineering Bureau to those who can qualify. Applicants should bring samples of their work with them.

NURSE REPORTED KILLED MARRIED TO SURGEON

Newark, N. J., Aug. 10.—Miss Minnie Dewar, a nurse of this city, reported killed in No Man's Land while hastening to a wounded soldier, has been married to Surgeon A. H. Winne, according to a letter received from the nurse by her mother, Mrs. John Dewar. The report of Miss Dewar's death, according to her mother, was sent out for malicious purpose. The bridesmaids included Miss Viola Rose of Pittsfield, Mass., a nurse at the hospital.

NEED 500 MORE NURSES TO FILL QUOTA

Massachusetts still needs 500 young women to register for service in order to fill her quota for the United States Student Nurse Reserve.

The keenest rivalry exists between the States as to which shall "go over the top" first, according to a communication received today from Washington by Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, chairman of the Massachusetts Woman's Committee, Council of National Defense, and considerable interest is directed toward this State because her quota of 2,000 is so nearly reached.

It is hoped that this number may not only be reached, but exceeded, before the close of the drive, which officially closes on August 17, although the time for registration has been extended. The government agencies in Washington co-operating in the drive will await with eagerness the reports from the States, to learn if the full number required, 25,000, has been reached.

Miss Helen Wood, who is representing the Council of Defense at the Central Recruiting Station, at the Massachusetts General Hospital, states that over 1,000 young women have applied to her personally for registration blanks and the greater number of these has proven eligible, having had a necessary education and being of good health, the two main requirements. Application blanks are being issued from many other hospitals in the State where full information may be obtained.

BOSTON SUNDAY ADVERTISER

Here's One Verse:

There's many a thing we all can do to serve our country now,
We'll leave it to our Uncle Sam to show us where and how;
His spokesman is our President of steady heart and mind,
Above the kings of all the earth a giant of his kind.
